LOYAL SOLDIERS ARE MOBILIZED

Troops Are Now Under Arms in Madrid.

THREE GARRISONS ARE REENFORCED

Censorship Throughout Spain Is Rigid.

Despatch from Madrid Says Republicans Tamper with Garrison at Badajose in Effort To Win Soldiers Over to the Revolutionary Cause—High Officials Said To Be Implicated in the Plot.

London, Nov 3—Despite the official denial that there has been any revolutionary activity in Spain, it is known here that the government is heavily reinforcing the garrisons at Barcelona, Saragossa and Sabadell Moreover the troops sent into these revolutionary centers are being drawn from portions of the army that are recognized as intensely loyal to Alfonso and still uncorrupted by the Republican agents

An additional 20 000 loyal soldiers have been mobilized under arms in Madrid The government announces that they were summoned to the capital to participate in a monster memorial to the victims of the battle of Melilla last year However no suggestion that such a memorial service was in contemplation had ever been made until rumors of a revolution reached the outside world and it is believed here that the memorial" is merely a subterfuge to fill Madrid with troops without exciting the anger of the populace In the meantime, a strike has been ordered all over Spain and the order is being generally obeyed Thousands of workmen have laid down their tools and business is greatly depressed The military governor in Sabadell and Saragossa is rigidly censoring outgoing telegrams especially those in code or addressed to newspapers

Rigid Censorship

No ingoing "queries' asking correspondents for the true situation are being delivered in those cities, and mail from Spain shows that it has been thoroughly ransacked and objectionable matter expunged before being allowed to leave the country

The morning newspapers in London today, refer to rumors they have received of an attempt on the life of King Alfonso, but declare that these are wholly unconfirmed

A despatch from Madrid says that the Republicans have been tampering with the garrison at Badajose, in an effort to win the soldiers over to the revolutionary cause High officials are said to have been implicated in the plot, Mayor Santos being under arrest for trying to gain the consent of officers to the revolt

Senor Blasquose, president of the Federation of Young Socialists, is under arrest for making an anti-military speech at a mass meeting held to protest against the arrest of Professor Ovejoto, of the University of Madrid

Out of the tangled web of rumors the situation seems to be summed up thus

Something unquestionably has happened that has alarmed the Spanish government dreadfully and an explosion is expected momentarily

DOVE OF PEACE HOVERS ROUND

Express Drivers' Strike May End Tomorrow.

CONFERENCES ARE BEING HELD TODAY

And Signs of a Settlement Are Seen.

It Is Estimated That Express Companies Are Losing $100,000 a Day by the Strike—There Are 200,000 Undelivered Packages and Forty Unloaded Cars of Express Matter on Hand in New York

New York, Nov 3—Prospects for a peaceful settlement of the express drivers strike improved today A committee, consisting of one driver and one helper from each express company in the city and one representative from each company, has been chosen to meet this afternoon in an effort to outline a proposal for submission to the general teamsters meeting tomorrow

Valentine Hoffman, national organizer of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters said that he believed this afternoon's meeting would be able to agree upon terms that would be acceptable to the teamsters and that the threatened calling out of the 30 000 in New York would be averted

In view of the submission tomorrow of the committee's proposal Hoffman and William H Ashton, another organizer of the teamsters, will not exercise their prerogative of calling a general strike tonight

Line of Strife

Both the strikers and express companies are anxious to reach an agreement without calling upon Mayor Gaynor In the event of to day's committee failing to agree on a proposal it is believed that the mayor would then step in

All the department stores whose drivers are on strike here are in conference with their men Ten thousand drivers are now out according to Hoffman 75,000 of whom are express wagon drivers

The strikers still insist that the recognition of their union must be agreed to before there can be any discussion of wages or other terms

It is estimated that the express companies are losing $100 000 a day by the strike There are 200-000 undelivered parcels and forty unloaded cars of express matter

HARDING TALKS TO THOUSANDS

Great Throng Turns Out in Columbus.

SECRETARY KNOX ADDRESSES CROWD

Memorial Hall Is Jammed to the Doors.

At Capital City Meeting, Where Hundreds Are Unable To Gain Entrance to Hall, Candidate Harding Emphasizes Governor Harmon's Insincerity, and Knox Reviews Record of Republican Party.

Columbus O Nov 3—Memorial hall was jammed to the doors last night It stayed packed for three hours

From the time the Republican glee men raised their voices and the roof with exultant and catchy song until Warren G Harding finished with an eloquent appeal for optimistic patriotism and the audience jumped to its feet and joined the Republican Glee club in singing My Country every one of the 3,700 seats had an occupant Hundreds stood in the corridors, on stairways and in the balcony They stood at 8 o'clock They still stood at 10 30 A large number were unable to gain admittance

The thousands there were attentive and responsive as Secretary of State Philander C Knox exploited the progressive steps of the Roosevelt and Taft administrations in clinching federal control of corporations They were ebullient enthusiastic as the Republican candidate for governor declared Governor Harmon wanting in accomplishment

From the 'Hail' Hail' The Gang's All Here' of the glee club when the uniformed Bucks' marched in to the music of the Fourth Regiment band and the 'Rah, rah rah, Knox' of the O S U McKinley club, which also was part of the escort parade from the Chittenden to the less shrill but greater volumed applause of the audience when Knox and Harding said things which went home there was real enthusiasm

Ovation for Harding

It culminated in the ovation which greeted Harding when introduced by Harry M Daugherty, chairman of the meeting as having been nominated in that hall by no faction no boss a self-made man not a machine-made, not a machine-controlled one of whom no truthful tongue can speak ill, who never dodged nor sulked nor scratched

The Bucks jumped to their feet and waved flags, so did a row of school girls white-waisted and red-cheeked Handkerchiefs were waved front and back and in the balcony

To the audience Knox attacked Harmon as dodging opportunity to proceed against trusts as the head of the United States department of justice Harding attacked Harmon as not lifting a finger to save the public utilities bill knifed to death by thirteen Democratic senators," and met the governor's defense af Cleveland against the C, H & D charges

Referring to an allusion by Daugherty to the day being his forty fifth birthday anniversary, Harding said he was glad to come to such a large birthday party He had been nominated in that hall and the character of his nomination had caused a lot of trouble to a distinguished temporary resident of Columbus

No obligations

There is a permanent resident of the city he said James Ross whose name rhymes with boss Harmon has never been divorced from Ross I don't pay any deference or devotion to any boss or abuses in connection with treasury, and I don't owe my nomination to combination of bosses or any corporation or combination of corporations

As governor I won't have any obligations except to the Republican platform of 1910 I do owe something to one boss, I don't know whether she is here tonight or not

As you have heard tonight from Secretary Knox Governor Harmon, back in the days of Grover Cleveland's cabinet said the Sherman anti-trust law was unworkable The Democrats cry out against trusts but it remained for a Republican attorney general Philander C Knox to make the first genuine enforcement of the anti trust law

Charging Harmon with opposition to the utilities bill Harding declared for a fair utilities commission He said

Here in Ohio we must work in harmony with the national administration in the regulation of public corporations We need a utilities commission I make no appeal to hatred or distrust of corporations I shall not sow the seeds of industrial ruin We must have great corporations We must regulate them No longer must we permit them to dominate we must make them serve the people If any man puts corporate interests above popular and human interests in Ohio don't vote for him

Party Worth While

The Republican party does not mean to strike down, but does mean to have righteous regulation and enforcement of law for big and little alike'

Harding quoted editorial condemnation of Harmon's agency in the killing of the utilities bill by The Citizen which is supporting the governor and declared Elect a Republican governor and a Republican legislature and a fair utilities bill will be the certain fruit

I speak for a progressive Republican party It wouldn't be a party worth while if it were not progressive

Harmon had said Harding had lowered the plane of the campaign

Well said Harding I have raised it somewhat from talk of the grafting of $1 50 workmen on the canal to the dodging of $1 500 000 of railroad taxes

Harding said in part

There is one question on which Governor Harmon and I at last agree, It is Has your governor made good?' When this campaign began Governor Harmon said there was but one issue his exploitation of graft In that he persisted until about ten days ago when he dropped the cry of graft and began to make apologies At Cleveland, Tuesday night Governor Harmon said that the one issue of this campaign was Has your governor made good? Then he added this illuminating sentence If I have made good I am entitled to your support for re election and if I have not I am not entitled to any further confidence

Faith Not Kept

I quite agree with Governor Harmon That is the issue Governor Harmon has not made good He has not kept the faith He proclaimed

POLICE CAPTURE YOUNG RAFFLES

Buffalo Man Is Held in Baltimore.

BARNETTE ALWAYS WEARS DRESS SUIT

When Committng Most Daring Burglaries.

Officers Search Barnette's Living Rooms and Find Much Jewelry and Other Plunder, Electric Flashlights, Skeleton Keys and Everything To Make Up a Complete Burglar's Kit

Baltimore Nov 3—The police of this city believe they have in custody a genuine Raffles in the person of Thomas N Barnette alias Kemp of Toronto Ontario who is held here on the charge of having robbed the residence of Howard Kellogg at Buffalo September 9 On Barnette's person and in the room where he has been living the police found a large quantity of jewelry and other plunder electric flashlights, skeleton keys and everything else that goes to make up a complete burglar's kit

Also in custody is Miss Florence Tomlinson aged eighteen, who is said to be the daughter of a railroad official living in Toronto Miss Tomlinson and Barnette eloped from Toronto and until yesterday she believed they had been legally married in New York state That this had been a mock marriage developed after Barnette's arrest when he begged that a minister be sent for to marry him to the girl She was willing, that this be done until Barnette confessed, so the police say to a number of burglaries Miss Tomlinson's father has been notified of his daughter's plight

The couple figure in the newspapers some time ago, when while they were living in Newark, New Jersey Miss Tomlinson accidentally shot herself with a revolver

Barnette, who is twenty-three years old told the detectives that he made a rule to wear full dress whenever he made his burglarious expeditions so that, if discovered, he might reasonably claim to have accidentally entered the wrong house

THE COLONEL ANSWERS DIX

Roosevelt Accuses Candidate of Evading Issues.

COLONEL DICTATES REPLY ON TRAIN

And Takes Up Subject Concerning Wage Earners.

Roosevelt Says If Mr Dix Is Right in Championship of Judge Baldwin's Decision It Is Unconstitutional for Nation and States To Grant Relief to Workingmen in Shape of Compensation Acts

Alliance, O Nov 3—[Aboard Roosevelt Train Enroute Baltimore to Chicago.]—Aroused by the vitriolic attack of John A Dix Democratic gubernatorial candidate in New York last night, Colonel Roosevelt dictated a reply today in which he accused Dix of evading the issues The colonel declares Dix takes a stand against the well-being of the workingman by upholding the decision of Judge Baldwin, of Connecticut against workmen compensation Roosevelt said

Mr Dix becomes exceedingly valorous about me the minute I leave the state I'll answer him when I get back I call the attention of all wage workers to the fact that having in effect defended the bakeshop decision which forbade New York state to interfere to prevent workingmen from laboring an excessive number of hours under unhygienic conditions he now in effect defends a decision declaring workingmen's compensation also unconstitutional It is, of course, mere nonsense for Mr Dix to assert that he is for the principle either of shortening the excessive hours of labor, unhealthy conditions or of establishing the right of workmen to be compensated for the loss of life or limb while working at their trades

Baldwin Matter

For he is now explicitly upholding the judges who have decreed against these principles and is condemning the more numerous judges who have taken the opposite view and upheld the rights of the laboring men instead of adhering to purely technical doctrines which work cruel wrong and injustice

If Mr Dix is right in his championship of Judge Baldwin's decision it is unconstitutional for the nation and the states to grant any relief to the workingmen in the shape of compensation acts The decision of Judge Baldwin, which Mr Dix upholds will not, I am confident, prove to be the law of the land In either the nation or the state but to uphold it is entirely incompatible with any man is candidate saying that he is in favor of any real or effectual workmen compensation act

My answer to Judge Baldwin was dictated yesterday, to be sent just as soon as the typewritten copy reaches me I call attention to the fact that Mr Dix does not dare to deal with Mr Stimson nor to meet one fact that Mr Stimson has stated about him still less in any shape or way aggressively or defensively to measure himself with Mr Stimson

GIRL PUNCTURES HER ASSAILANT

Cincinnati Maid Uses Hatpin with Good Effect

Cincinnati O Nov 3 Attacked by a negro as she was walking along a street in Oakley Mary Clay 15 drew a hatpin and jabbed her assailant until he was glad to desist from his attempt at assault The man approached her from behind seized her by the shoulders and bore her to the ground Miss Clay freeing one hand from the negro's grasp seized her hatpin and thrust it into his chest He yelled with pain and released her other hand and pressed both of his hands over the place penetrated by the pin This gave the girl an unlooked for opportunity for attack which she took advantage of in a moment With lightning like thrusts she perforated his body as if he had been a bodkin, and he was soon in full retreat

Fishermen's Strike.

Ashtabula Harbor O Nov 3 Local No 8 General Fishermen's association have voted to strike and by Friday it is expected all the men will have walked out Six tugs are affected three being operated by the Fairport Fish company

CONGRESSMAN FOSS DISOWNS CANNON

Foss Canvasses District To Feel the Sentiment

Chicago Nov 3 – Uncle' Joe Cannon has lost another friend The speaker has been politically disowned by Congressman George Edmond F Foss of the Tenth congressional district who has long been known as a stand patter extraordinary when it came to upholding the sage of Danville

In a careful canvass of my district I have found the sentiment unfavorable to the election of Mr Cannon as speaker said Foss in a public statement and I desire to state that in the event of a Republican house I shall vote for some other Republican for speaker

Do you mean by your statement that you oppose Mr Cannon personally or that you stand against Cannonism Congressman Foss was asked after his statement was made public

I do not know how to define Cannonism was the reply The people have put all their woes and grievances into one blanket and have called it Cannonism

CANVASS MADE BY POLITICAL CLUBS

New Record Will Be Set for Large Vote Cast

Washington Nov —The exodus of voters from the District of Columbia who are scattering to their homes throughout the country to cast their ballots in the coming elections sets a new record for other than a presidential year according to the canvass made by political clubs

More than 5000 will have left by the end of the week Those whose legal residence is in the Far West are already on their way and there is a steady stream of passengers for nearer points

If this movement may be taken as a barometer of popular interest in the elections it is believed here that the vote next Tuesday, will be unusually heavy Never before has such interest been shown in gubernatorial and congressional elections

MARTIAL LAW IS PROCLAIMED

Throughout Honduras, Say the Despatches.

VALLADARES IS WELL FORTIFIED

And the United States May Interfere.

Valladares, Having Been Officially Removed from Office, Is Now Classed as an Outlaw, and His Seizure of Amapala Is Declared To Be in Open Defiance of Law Uncle Sam Will Wait Awhile

Washington, Nov 3—With the almost certain prospect of interference by the United States to dislodge General Valladares from Amapala where he has fortified himself, martial law was proclaimed throughout Honduras, today according to despatches received at the state department

Valladares having been officially removed from office is now classed as an outlaw and his seizure of Amapala is declared to be in open defiance of law On this ground it is asserted, the United States will be justified in forcibly ejecting him from his stronghold

This government will wait however until Honduras has proved its inability to force Valladares to surrender Amapala is on an island and Valladares has practically all the Honduran boats He has about 600 men who are said to be well armed

Gunboat on Hand

For these reasons it is considered unlikely that Honduras can successfully attack him

If the gunboat Princeton attempted to attack the city by sending marines ashore there undoubtedly would be heavy loss of life It is believed however, that a few shots from the Princeton's cannon would compel Valladares to hoist the white flag

Commander Hayes, of the gun boat Princeton notified the state department this afternoon that Valladares had issued a statement announcing that he had no intention of endangering foreign interests The statement was addressed to the consular officers of the various nations but Hayes says that the consuls place no faith in it

EMMANUEL MAY LOSE HIS THRONE

Spirit of Unrest Pervades All Italy

REVOLUTIONARY ACTIVITY GROWS

Poor Are Oppressed by Land Owners.

The Government Is Afraid To Adopt Extreme Measures for Fear That This Would Fan to Flame the Embers of Insurrection That Are Unmistakably Smouldering—Garrison Troops Are Reenforced.

Rome Nov 3—Revolutionary activity is developing so rapidly throughout Italy that today, there is a growing fear among royalty that King Victor Emmanuel may be the next ruler to suffer the fate of King Manuel of Portugal whose throne was swept away overnight

The spirit of unrest is now infecting every quarter of the country It is partly due to the recent prodigious increase in the cost of living partly to popular discontent with the oppression of the great land owners and partly to the contagion of the example of Portugal Cost of food products is so high that there are hundreds of thousands of the population in the poorer parts of the country actually on the verge of starvation Even the well-to-do in former times are finding the struggle for existence almost too much

In the Ravenna district which is just now particularly turbulent, the government was recently compelled to reinforce the local garrisons with 1 500 troops and the authorities are again complaining that they must have additional troops or they will not answer for the consequence Similar conditions prevail in many quarters

The government is afraid to adopt extreme measures for fear that this would fan to a flame the embers of revolution that are unmistakably smouldering

Over in Bowling Green township, where William Kinnamon resides, the people thing mighty well of him and believe that he possesses all the qualities which go to make an ideal commissioner. And this belief is not shared by the members of his own party alone, but by Democrats as well. He has the respect and esteem of all his neighbors and his campaign is making friends daily. "Bill" Kinnamon, for that's the way he is known over there, is a most successful farmer and livestock man, and a man worth knowing. He's one of those straight-out, honest sort of people one delights to meet. His candidacy is worthy of consideration

A Democratic paper says: "Since the usual remedies do not relieve the strange feeling in our bones, we now know that it is not rheumatism, but merely the indication of a great Democratic victory." This reminds us of the case of the Hardin county man, who proclaimed that he had heard the angel of the Lord calling him to preach the gospel, only to make the embarrassing discovery, later on, that it was a neighbor calling his hogs.

Permit us, Mr. Voter, to again call your attention to Deputy County Auditor Jay Spaulding, who is the Republican nominee for the office of auditor. Over in LaRue, whence Jay came, old and young alike swear by him, and his popularity since his advent into the auditor's office is in no way diminished. Jay's one of the kind of fellows it's a pleasure to know. Not one of those vinegary county servants who meets you with a frown when you enter their offices, but one who greets you with a smile—and when Jay smiles you can think of nothing like it but a setting sun in a clear sky. The popularity which was and is his over in LaRue he has extended to the entire county, and not without reason, for he's an ideal official.

If doing one's duty well counts, Ed S. Ault has no reason to fear the outcome of the battle of the ballots next Tuesday. Ed Ault is the Republican candidate for county surveyor, a position which he has filled to the general satisfaction of the public, acting, at all times, without fear or favor, but faithfully for the best interests of all. It was during his administration, not through it, that the great Little Scioto river improvement was taken up. He is thoroughly familiar with its every detail, knows it like an open book, and he believes he is in position to carry this great work to its conclusion to the greater satisfaction of the people interested, whose name is legion, than one not in touch with the details of the undertaking. He is making his campaign along these lines, and his friends are enthusiastic over his chances for success.

HARMON'S RECORD.

The offenses charged against Governor Harmon by Mr. Harding in his Cleveland speeches Thursday night are of the gravest character. Governor Harmon's explanation of them in no way changes the facts nor does it relieve him from responsibility for them. He says that Cox inspired the attack is puerile and petty. If it were true, which we greatly doubt, it would be no excuse for the governor's conduct.

The facts as alleged by Mr. Harding are matters of record. They cannot be disputed and they constitute an arraignment of Governor Harmon that will condemn him in the minds of the great majority of the people.

Governor Harmon cannot deny that he continued to act as receiver of the C., H. & D. railroad for many months after taking his oath of office as governor. In fact he continued in the service until the sale of the road put an end to the need for his services.

Nor can Governor Harmon escape from the fact that in continuing this service he broke his promise to resign as receiver if elected governor, which was made by him repeatedly during the campaign of 1908. His plea that Judge Lurton insisted that he remain is explained when it is known that Lurton was an old style Tennessee, Grover Cleveland Democrat like Governor Harmon.

The tax returns made for J. Pierpont Morgan's C., H. & D. railroad, under Judson Harmon as receiver, are a matter of record. So are Mr. Harmon's official reports to the United States court which he was required to make as the receiver of the road.

There is absolutely no way by which Governor Harmon can escape from these records. The idea that the great Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad had only $1,045 on hand and in the hands of its freight and passenger agents on the second Monday in April, 1909, is absurd when it is remembered that this company does a large business in Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo, Piqua, Lima and the many other good sized towns and cities along its line. The statement needs no analysis to prove its falsity. It carries on its face proof of its inaccuracy.

But when it is known that Harmon's report a few days before to the United States court, namely on March 31, 1909, showed $157,158.81 cash on hand, the evidence of tax-dodging becomes overwhelming.

But this is only a small part of the offense. The C., H. & D. road owned large blocks of stock and bonds in other roads, all of which were taxable in Ohio. Judson Harmon, governor of Ohio, so far forgot his oath of office and his obligations as a citizen and as an officer of the court that he failed to return a single dollar of these securities for taxation.

Had all these securities been returned the taxes of the C., H. & D. railroad would have been increased, according to Mr. Harding's computation, by $1,800,000 in the three years of Harmon's receivership.

Governor Harmon has had much to say of graft, and so far as he has done the public any service he has been given due credit by us. But what is the essential difference between a man who takes money out of the public treasury illegally and the man who evades the payment of his just and legal taxes to the treasury?

Which is the more to be condemned, the poor weakling in office who is tempted to construe the law broadly for his own benefit in making up his expense account, or the big corporation lawyer who, while an officer of the court and receiver of a great railroad, construes the law relating to taxation so broadly in making his return for his company as to evade the payment of vast sums in taxes that are legally due the public treasury?

These questions cannot be evaded by Governor Harmon. The people will not permit them to be lightly passed by.

These latest revelations bear out all that has been said about Governor Harmon as the servant of big corporations. They show how he served them and why they are supporting him for governor. And they constitute a convincing reason why the people should not trust him again with the great power of the governorship of Ohio.—Youngstown Telegram.

The announcement that the Taft administration has saved the people in the matter of expenses, $15,000,000, doesn't look so much to Mr. J. P. Morgan. Why, Mr. Morgan has a friend, who, alone and single-handed, saved him $1,800,000, and that friends is such a modest, unassuming fellow that we would never have heard of it had the records not disclosed it.

MARION HAS A GREAT OPPORTUNITY

Fortunate Marion! In some way providence, push or politics seems constantly to be looking after her interests and thrusting the good things of this earth her way. In years gone by her good fortune could be attributed to the energy of her people in seeing that Marion interests were paramount to personal interests. In latter years this spirit is not so evident in Marion, more's the pity, but her present good fortune may be attributed to work previously done and in the fact that there are still a few people of the caliber of W. G. Harding who are intent on seeing that Marion has the opportunity and it remains for the people to profit by it or not as they please.

Marion's latest honor is in the nomination of a favorite son for the high office of governor of the greatest state in the union. The honor is intensified from the fact that it was a popular selection outside of all political machinations or schemes; in fact, Mr. Harding was nominated in spite of several machines, which sought to place other eminent men of national note at the head of the ticket. Marion is, because of this honor, brought prominently before the whole country and the world, because Ohio's political movements are watched more closely than any other state.

Marion is again fortunate in the caliber of the man who has been selected to head the Republican ticket. He is most worthy of the honor and most capable of filling the trying position in a manner entirely creditable to himself, his city and his party. If his election were left to Marion county the campaign should have been closed with the nomination. The election of Mr. Harding means further honor for Marion and for this part of Ohio. He is a man of performance and will fill this new position with honor and distinction. Being a progressive citizen of marked ability his success as governor will be but a stepping stone to further honors in which Marion and the Thirteenth district will share. There are real benefits in addition to the honor which will come to Marion county and this district through the election of Mr. Harding and the other honors which lay before a successful gubernatorial candidate in Ohio. While Marion is most fortunate, Crawford county, closely allied to Marion, and the entire Thirteenth district, will share her honor as they will enter enthusiastically into securing it for them and especially for Mr. Harding, than whom there has never been a more popular favorite or candidate more worthy of the honor.

A glance over the available political timber in Ohio shows Mr. Harding in the fore front. His election will mark him as one of the men Ohio has to offer for national preference. His election is up to the people and his future will then be in the hands of W. G. Harding, whose capabilities and character are such as to lead his neighbors to believe that in the political history of Ohio in the near future the name of Harding will loom large and with honor to himself, his city and his state. It is a pleasure to those who knew him best to help in his election.—Bucyrus Telegraph.

We were about to say that the hardest rooters for the reelection of William W. Klinefelter, Republican candidate for clerk, are the members of the Marion county bar. That would be a splendid recommendation in itself, for they are in better position, possibly, to know how excellently he has kept the records of the county courts, than those outside the profession. But that statement would hardly be fair to the hundreds of warm friends throughout the county who are working them utmost for "Billy." As heretofore, he is making a strong, clean campaign, the kind that counts, and the political prophets are unable to discover any sentiment to indicate that the result will be any different from the last time.

It is to always that we can agree with our good friend Grant Copeland of the LaRue News, but when he says: "There are few men in Marion county more popular than John H. Clark," Republican candidate for prosecuting attorney, we feel that the good old lady's expression "There's no accounts" just about fits the case. John, as we have previously stated, made one campaign as candidate was never before made in Marion county, and when the ballots were counted, he was the only one in the race. John made the mistake of imagining that one campaign would do for two elections, and he is not prosecutor now. But he is not making any mistakes this year. No, no, John. He's "asking for it" this time. No better recommendation could be offered than his [illegible]

One of the finest campaigns being made by any of the candidates on the Marion county ticket, is being made by one of the very best young fellows on the ticket—George B. Knapp, Republican candidate for treasurer. As treasurer of one of Marion's progressive business institutions, he has had an experience which comes to few who seek the office of county treasurer. He is a perfect bookkeeper and in all ways superbly fitted for the place. With George B. Knapp in the treasurer's office, property-owners would be waited on with courtesy and despatch alike. A vote for George would never be regretted.

William N. Harder, a well-known member of the Marion county bar and a man in every way fitted for the position which he seeks, is the Republican candidate for representative. Mr. Harder is making a wonderfully clean campaign for the place; a campaign which can not do otherwise than commend him to the voters of the county. As representative, he could be depended on to watch the interests of Marion county faithfully, while his legal education would prove, to the extent of his vote and influence, a bar to the passage of that kind of legislation which is a law only till it comes before the supreme court—that form of legislation which is worse than no legislation at all; that form of legislation from which Ohio, like all other states, has so long suffered—legislation which is faulty in itself.

The Star would feel that it had not done its duty to the voters of Marion county were it to fail to once more commend Felix Kiger, one of the three Republican candidates for the position of infirmary director. There is scarcely a man in Marion county, who has attained his majority, who does not know Felix Kiger and none who knows him that does not know well of him. Felix is one of Marion county's progressive citizens, one to whom all who know him may point with pride, and all the better one knows him all the prouder one may be to call him friend. When the Republicans of Marion county selected Felix Kiger for a place on the ticket they acted wisely and well.

One of the candidates on the Republican county ticket who is attracting more than average attention resides on a farm near Agosta. His name is John A. Russler. Russler, remember, not Hustler, as you might naturally imagine from the size of the swath he is cutting in the race for county commissioner. He's one of the very best men ever named for the place. He's a man worth watching. When the votes are counted next Tuesday night, or, possibly, it were better to say next Wednesday morning, if it isn't demonstrated that he's inside the limit, some of the most astute local politicians will be forced to confess that it's time for them to go out of the prophecy business.

Those who have not kept in close touch with the campaign, this fall, are going to be surprised when the total is put at the bottom of the vote cast for E. L. McKinley, Republican candidate for infirmary director. Over in LaRue, from which place he came, they think a lot of him, and since his advent here all those who have had dealings with him have had reason to know that the high esteem in which he was held across there was not without cause. The proprietor of a successful grocery store. You all know the location, up on State street just as you turn onto Fairground. He also goes over the county buying produce, and by his fair and square dealing has not only made an unusually large acquaintance, but also one that holds for him a more than ordinarily high regard. The same business sagacity which he has shown in conducting his own business and his fairness and squareness in dealing, would be valuable to Marion county in conducting the infirmary affairs.

When Henry W. Schrock quit farming to come to Marion to follow the trade of carpenter, old Richland lost a mighty good citizen and Marion gained one. Schrock is one of the Republican candidates for infirmary director and his friends expect him to get the place. His recent accident in which he suffered a very serious [illegible] interfered with his early campaign somewhat, but he has been going right merry clip since the campaign was warmed up and is making a showing which is alike pleasing to himself and friends. He's a good class of hard-working, industrious [illegible] one who could be depended upon to take good judgment and a clear conscience into office with him and at all times strive for the best interests of the county and the county's indigent wards.

HURTS BECAUSE IT'S TRUE.

What the governor and his political backers dread most as the result of the Harding-Garfield exposure of his record as receiver of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad company is not so much the tax-dodging or the rebating in the form of damage claims allowed as it is the general impression which will spread throughout the state, that Mr. Harmon has necessarily been extremely intimate with powerful financial interests enjoying special privileges in Ohio. The managers of the Harmon campaign fear the effect of his position as the president of many railroad companies connected with or subsidiary to the C., H. & D. system, upon the common people of the state.

The reason for this fear is the fact that there exists a strong and well-developed opinion that the governor of Ohio is best fitted to serve the people justly when he is free from Wall street connections or special interests of the kind represented by public service corporations. The Harmon campaign is likely to go to wreck upon the rocks of his financial associations and business interests.

The attacks upon Governor Harmon, on this ground, hurt because they are true. There is no room for doubt that he does stand for all that is implied in long and intimate associations with great corporations enjoying special privileges in this state. There is no question that he has lived many years in the atmosphere which such interests create and has looked upon political and governmental issues through their spectacles. It would be impossible, otherwise, that he should have had the professional and financial connections which are matter of record and can not be successfully denied.—Cleveland Leader.

When the Republicans of Marion county named their ticket they went down to the extreme southwest corner of the county for their candidate and selected Dr. G. H. Masters, of Prospect. You may take it as a hundred-to-one shot they have had no reason to regret their choice. The doctor is popular from one end of the county to the other. Tall of figure, erect in carriage, the silver showing in his hair and beard alike, active and vigorous, kindly and courteous to all, the doctor is a typical veteran of the civil war, the kind you like to see pictured and read about. And friends! The way that man makes friends is a wonder. No one knows the doctor but to like and admire him. Prospect is working for him, Marion is working for him—the whole county's working for him, and, it may be added, he's well qualified for the office.

If the Republicans of Marion county have their way they will not do any good to this back-to-the-farm movement. If they have their way they will bring some mighty good men from the farm and plant them in the county courthouse. And among those they would thus transplant, none is more worthy than their candidate for county recorder, C. H. Keller. Charlie is one of those wide-awake hustlers one likes to know. He's good goods all the way through. There's nothing shoddy about Charlie. Ask any of his neighbors down about Waldo and you will find that he's a fair, square man—just such a man as you would wish to have wait upon you when you do business in the recorder's office. And he's perfectly fitted for the place. He is careful, accurate and a fine penman. We have presented our readers an excellent likeness of him. Such as do not already know him personally, if there are any such, should be able to see at a glance that he's the live, active, energetic kind of a man the county needs in its office of records.

It doesn't matter greatly how far back in the life of Roy Chapman one goes, he will find a straight, clean record. Roy has served as employe of the local telephone company; again we see him as an employe in the Steam Shovel shops, he has been employed by the local Street Railway company and served the city upon the police force and as health officer. And in all these various capacities he has ever worked faithfully and well. Against his entire record on the local force or as the one upon whom fell the duty of preserving the health conditions of the city there is not a single black mark, and we can't help but feel that one who has been thus faithful in performance in the past may be depended upon to faithfully transact any duties which may come to him in the future. Roy seeks election as the Republican nominee to the office of sheriff. His experience for years past has been one which gives him special qualifications for the place. He is making a straight, clean campaign, working for Chapman, not knocking his opponent, and that's the kind of a campaign which counts. It need not surprise Star readers to hear more about Roy Chapman the night after election.

One of Grand Prairie's most hustling and progressive farmers is M. J. Morral, one of the trio of Republican candidates for county commissioner. The present is Mr. Morral's first try at politics as a candidate, but that's no handicap as he has been a party worker for years and knows every part of the county like a book, and, what is still better, is known in every part of the county. Members of both the two old parties concede that M. J. Morral is one of the very strongest candidates in the race, and his friends and admirers are confident that he will land on the right side of the wire November 8. He's a good man, all the way through.

Is Guilt Still Personal?

No matter how vociferous and earnest Governor Harmon grows in evading responsibility for the tax-dodging and rebating of Morgan's C., H. & D. railroad, he is confronted by his own words: "Guilt is personal." If these words are true, the governor can not be defended from the charges made against him in Cleveland the other evening by the Hon. Warren G. Harding.

These three words are the slogan that helped put Governor Harmon in office. While they are familiar to nearly every one in the state, their history is not so familiar.

Under the administration of President Roosevelt, Messrs. Frederick N. Judson, of St. Louis, and Judson Harmon, of Cincinnati, were engaged in investigating certain rebatings of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway. They uncovered a situation in the affairs of the Santa Fe which exactly parallels the situation Mr. Harding disclosed in the C., H. & D.

Mr. Paul Morton, now president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, was at that time a leading official in the executive and freight departments of the Santa Fe. The relation he occupied while with the railroad, in the granting of freight rebates, parallels the relation Governor Harmon occupied while he was receiver of the rebate-paying and tax-dodging C., H. & D. road.

Governor Harmon and Mr. Judson, in a report to President Roosevelt, submitted charges against Mr. Morton which parallel the charges Mr. Harding makes against Governor Harmon. The government was not disposed to uphold the contention of Governor Harmon and Attorney Judson.

Then the governor insisted that not any subordinate of the railroad—no tax officer or claim agent—but Mr. Morton himself was the guilty one, and he resigned his job with the government rather than admit otherwise. In that letter of resignation he said: "Guilt is personal!"

Is guilt still personal or is Warren G. Harding wrong?—Dayton Journal.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

George McClure, a paperhanger, who achieved notoriety some years ago as a disciple of "Coal Oil Johnny," died recently at the Allegheny General Hospital, practically penniless.

The oldest candidate on any ticket in New York state this fall is Cyrus M. Crum, of Nyack. He is eighty-six years old and will stump the county for re-election as county clerk. He has held the office continuously for fifty-four years and already enjoys the distinction of being the oldest county clerk in the United States.

King George has let it be known that he will have the Prince of Wales become a Mason as soon as the lad reaches suitable age. King Edward was an enthusiastic member of the fraternity and grand master for Great Britain when prince, turning that office over to the Duke of Connaught when he ascended the throne, the present King not then being a Ma-on.

Fish That Carry Candles.

Some of the fish found at a depth of about ten thousand feet by a German deepsea expedition, resembled the fossil species in the rocks of the Mesozoic era, when the earth's atmosphere was dense with carbon. These fish in many cases had special means of collecting light. Some possessed enormous eyes occupying nearly the whole side of the head and some were supplied with telescopic organs. Others carried their light on their heads in a manner similar to that of the glow worm.

Where the Bell Rings.

This spot on the map of the United States is, and always will be, the clearing house of the country. Touch a commercial, industrial or financial button to a bell anywhere from Maine to Texas, or Montauk Point to the Golden Gate, and it rings right here. So as the nation grows and does more and more of everything, the ring of the bells here will be louder and louder.—New York Press.

Waves of Atlantic Largest.

Investigation shows that the waves of the Atlantic are probably larger than those of any other body of water, reaching 42 feet. Waves of this size look much higher from a ship's deck.

HARDING'S CHARGES.

Governor Harmon so far fails to explain away the charge made by Mr. Harding that the C., H. & D. Railroad company during his receivership evaded paying taxes to the amount of $1,800,000. Mr. Harding continues to repeat his charge and sustains them by the official reports of the road. Governor Harmon's excuse that he simply accepted the report of the road's taxing official and took it for granted that it was all right will not hold. It is decidedly lame. It is dodging the question. He was the receiver of the road and responsible to the court for a full and complete return of the road's properties for taxation the same as though he actually owned the road. Under such an excuse as he gives the head of every railroad doing business in Ohio which has concealed property in its tax return can be held innocent. It was the governor's business to know that the returns were honest. The report made to the stockholders of the company were widely at variance with those made by the taxing officials and this gives the thing a suspicious look. Is it possible that Governor Harmon was not aware of this variance? Does any man believe that he as receiver of the road was utterly ignorant of the fact that the properties were not being listed for taxation? As stated before, Mr. Harding obtained all his facts from the official records on file before he made his charge. He investigated the matter thoroughly and it doesn't make a particle of difference whether George B. Cox or anybody else aided him in bringing the facts to light. What the question is, and they the facts. The people want to know, is the charge true? If it is the governor grievously failed in his duty to the state and the people in allowing this enormous amount of property to escape taxation. And it makes no difference whether the road was bankrupt or not. The governor has had much to say about tax reform graft, and it has led a good many voters to believe that he stands for honesty and reform in public office, and this makes the charge reflecting on himself all the more serious. The attorney general should make a thorough investigation. The people want to know the truth. The state and the county are cheated out of millions of money every year by false listing of corporation properties for taxation. There is another thing in this connection which looks bad. When the Alsdorf tax bill was before the legislature last winter, it was discovered among other things that it contained a provision that the state tax commission should not have authority to go back five years to collect omitted or concealed taxes, that such authority should only apply after the law had been in operation five years. Governor Harmon was not only consulted but actually helped to draft the bill and it was known in the legislature as the Alsdorf-Harmon taxation bill. It passed the senate, but fortunately was defeated in the house where the Republicans had a large majority. It was stated at the time that Governor Harmon insisted upon that provision and used his influence to secure the passage of the bill in that form over the Langdon bill which was finally enacted and is infinitely better for the people.—Sandusky Register.

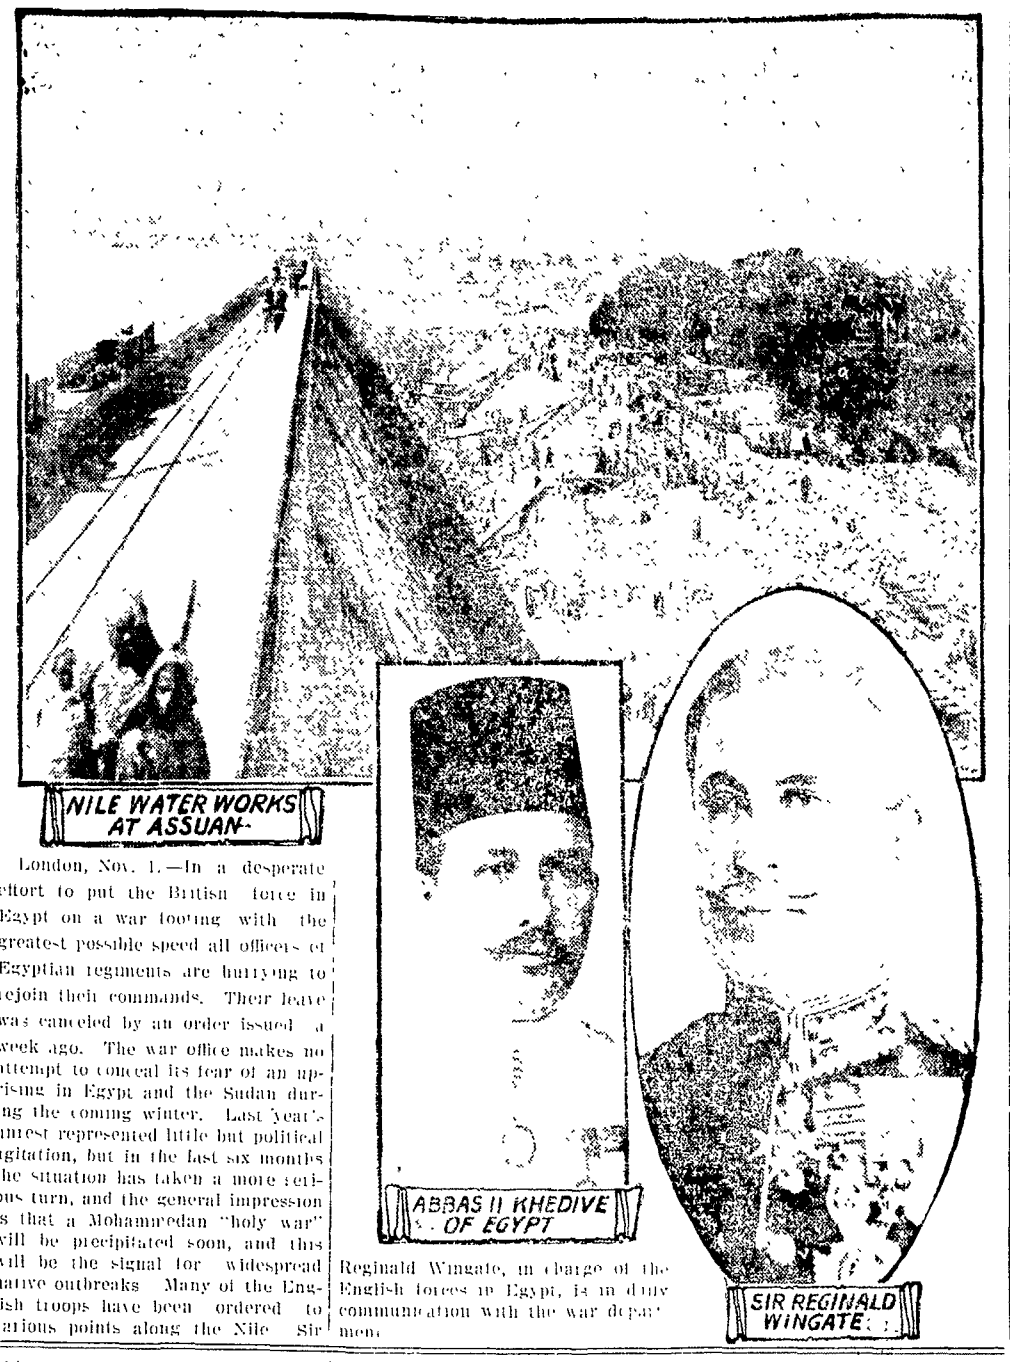
ENGLAND IS RUSHING TROOPS TO EGYPT IN FEAR OF SUDAN UPRISING



London, Nov. 1.—In a desperate effort to put the British force in Egypt on a war footing with the greatest possible speed all officers of Egyptian regiments are hurrying to rejoin their commands. Their leave was canceled by an order issued a week ago. The war office makes no attempt to conceal its fear of an uprising in Egypt and the Sudan during the coming winter. Last year's unrest represented little but political agitation, but in the last six months the situation has taken a more serious turn, and the general impression is that a Mohammedan "holy war" will be precipitated soon, and this will be the signal for widespread native outbreaks Many of the English troops have been ordered to various points along the Nile Sir Reginald Wingate, in charge of the English forces in Egypt, is in daily communication with the war department.

GOULD CHILDREN MAY BE EDUCATED UNDER THE CARE OF THE COURTS

New York, Nov 1.—Surrounded by all that money can buy, the two daughters of Frank Gould are still denied the care of father and mother through the divorce proceedings and remarriage of both parents. Helen and Dorothy Gould are being cared for by their aunt, Miss Helen Gould who has agreed to educate the children. This arrangement was made by Mrs Gould, who later became Mrs. R H Thomas. Frank Gould before he got mixed in Paris with Edith Kelly, the actress, who is said to be Mrs Gould No 2, filed some objections to the rules set down by their mother, and now it is reported the two beautiful children may be brought into court. Society grows bitter when it discusses these two children Miss Helen Gould is reported to have tried to persuade her brother from having the children educated under the care of the courts, but well founded reports declare the young man is stubborn over what he claims are his rights A conference between the attorneys of the various interested parties is scheduled to be held soon, and efforts will be made to settle the disputes.

CENTRAL OHIO'S FIRST PEEP AT AN AEROPLANE

A Flight Will Be Made from Dayton to Columbus.

Central Ohio is to get the first peep at an aeroplane November 7, one of Wright Brothers planes will start from Dayton for a continuous flight to Columbus, and, skirting the southern part of the city, will land in the field at the Columbus driving park

The flight will be of more than ordinary importance, for it will mark the first use of the aeroplane in the transportation of goods for commercial purposes. The aviator will probably be Herbert Brookins, who is now at the New York City meet, and his "freight" will be a bolt of silk ribbon

The ribbon is to come from a Dayton wholesale house, and is to be delivered to a Columbus retail store, which has made arrangements for the flight That freight transportation by aerial route will not become popular for some time, is shown by the fact that the freight charges will be $5,000 In addition to this, the firm has offered an additional $5,000 if the aviator, after reaching Columbus, shall break the altitude mark for the United States, which is now 9,714 feet The Writh brothers have indicated that the effort will be made

The ship will make the trip by way of Springfield and London, will strike Columbus on the west, probably about Town street, will then turn south to the southern outskirts; then west again to the driving park

The trip is to be made without stop, if possible, which will establish a new record for cross-country flight The distance, it is thought is about seventy miles The start is to be made at 8 o'clock in the morning, and if the flight is continuous the airship should arrive at Columbus by 10 o'clock or shortly thereafter

Factory whistles will tell Columbus people of the start from Dayton, and people along the route are asked to send in the time of they are willing to telephone, the day of the flight, when they see the aeroplane above them In this way it will be possible to follow the aviator the complete distance

Rudolph Sze, a Chinese boy, has just walked away with the University of Pennsylvania scholarship, which is yearly awarded by competitive examination to a District of Columbia high school student.

TRIP BY AEROPLANE TO THE CAPITAL CITY

Flight Will Be from Dayton Next Week.

COMMERCIAL USE OF THE AIRCRAFT

Arriving in Columbus the Aviator Will Give an Exhibition and an Endeavor Made to Establish New World's Altitude Record—Flight Will Be Spectacular One.

A spectacle spectacularly modern; a spectacle as perfectly typical of the twentieth century as ever was a chariot-smashing, horse slaughtering dash around the Coliseum of the young century, in the most splendid days of Rome; a spectacle of the marvel of masterful modernity; a spectacle like a great bat passing in the night, only silhouetted in the shafts of the brilliance of the sun's rays; a spectacle of white canvas, like the wings of a bird, driven by the mechanism, the genius of man, will match prowess with the winds—in short, a spectacle of a bird-man, the conqueror of the air and its illimitable space, high in the fleecy clouds with the sunshine flashing from the bright metal work and the glistening wings of a swiftly-flying aeroplane, will be seen in the heavens southwest of Columbus next Monday morning, steering in the direction of the Capital City, with a consignment of goods, weighing 150 pounds, for the Morehouse-Martens Company, sent from Dayton. This will be the first aeroplane ever seen in Columbus, and an immense throng of people from all over central Ohio is expected to be present and see it alight at the Columbus Driving Park and witness its further maneuverings and sensational flights and capers about the race course.

Brookins at Levers.

The aeroplane will be driven by Walter Brookins, who while driving the Wright "baby grand" racer at Belmont Park, N. Y., last week, fell with his machine and dashed it to pieces before a crowd of 300,000 people. Mr. Brookins was only slightly injured. If Mr. Brookins is unable to drive the Dayton special, then either Aviators Hoxsey or Johnstone will be at the lever.

The Wright brothers declare the most experienced man in their employ shall make the flight.

The aeroplane must be on the grounds at Dayton fully equipped on the morning of Nov. 7. If weather conditions are favorable the aviator will start at 8 o'clock in the morning. He will attempt to reach Columbus in a continuous flight about 10:30 a. m.

The Morehouse-Martens Company, who arranged for the flight, agrees to furnish ample police protection at the Columbus Driving park. The Wright company agrees to have the aviator make spiral flights, figure eights and ascend to a height of 2,000 feet after his arrival.

While people have been transported for miles in this country and Europe, the air craft has never before been brought into commercial use

Arrangements have been made with the United States Telephone company to trace the aviator from the time he starts from Dayton until he reaches Columbus. The company will notify all of its exchanges in small towns between Columbus and Dayton to immediately communicate with the Columbus Driving park as soon as the aeroplane is seen.

The exchanges have also been told to notify all their subscribers to be on the lookout for the machine. The The aviator's flight will be marked out on a large chart, which will be provided, showing his progress at every stage of his flight.

Morehouse's Idea.

The idea was evolved Oct. 12 by Mr. Max Morehouse, of Morehouse-Martens, proprietors of the Home Store of Columbus, and he immediately wrote the Wright brothers and put the proposition before them. Nine days later Mr. Morehouse received a letter from Roy Knabenshue, general manager of their exhibition department in which he said that the proposition was possible.

Knabenshue told Mr Morehouse that it was a physical impossibility to launch the aeroplane from one building and alight upon the roof of another, after traveling the distance between the cities. He suggested that the Driving park be secured. He said that the trip could be made without stops. He said that he would not consider the proposition if he was not confident of its success.

Mr Morehouse immediately drew up a contract, which was accepted, and the compensation was fixed at $5,000

To Give Exhibition Also.

Mr. Morehouse agreed that the descent should be made at the Driving park, where an admission fee will be charged After the descent is made the consignment of goods delivered and receipted for, the aviator in charge will give an exhibition of fancy spirals, and will attempt to establish a new altitude record. The United States record is now 7,363 feet. If this is accomplished, Mr. Morehouse will pay the Wright brothers a bonus of $5,000 in addition to the $5,000 which will be paid for the trip.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY INDICTS THE HOCKING

Twenty Eight Counts for Violation of the Law

DISCRIMINATION IS BASIS FOR CHARGES

The Sunday Creek Coal Company Is Also Indicted on Nine Counts for Violation of the Interstate Commerce Law—The Possible Fines Run Into Many Thousands

A United Press wire from Toledo Wednesday says Indictments charging the Hocking Valley railroad company and the Sunday Creek Coal company with discriminating in violation of the interstate commerce law and carrying a possible total fine of $740 000 were returned by the federal grand jury this morning after a session that has extended over a period of several weeks

The Hocking Valley was indicted on twenty eight counts and the Sunday Creek company nine counts The penalty to the offenses is a fine of from $1 000 to $5 000 on each count so that if Federal Judge Killits feels so disposed he may impose a fine of $140 000 upon the railroad company and $180 000 against the coal company At the request of District Attorney Denman Judge Killits fixed bond at $5 000 each indictment

Government officials conversant with the situation declare the jurors drawn in this district will be asked to state among other things whether the right of railroad companies of whatever nature to discriminate against outside shippers by giving to their own companies unlimited cars and credit is a thing of the past If the Hocking Valley and Sunday Creek companies both continue to maintain the view that the district attorney and his staff will maintain it is said that dozens of big coal carrying and other organizations will have to change business methods

APPEALS TO THE POLICE TO RECOVER HIS AUTO

Dr Harder, of Forest, Is a Visitor in the City

CHARLES ANSLEY HAS THE DOCTOR'S AUTO

Refuses To Surrender It Until an Alleged Bill for Repairs Is Paid On Advice of Chief the Machine Is Turned Over to the Owner Some Local Police Court Notes

Dr Harder of Forest was in the city Wednesday and sought the services of Chief Kinchenter to recover an automobile from Charles Ansley According to Harder Ansley was in Forest and he turned over to him an automobile to dispose of According to the terms Ansley was to receive all over $200 for making the sale but was to stand nothing for repairs on the machine

Ansley brought the machine to Marion after Harders electrician made several repairs on it Harder was unable to hear from Ansley in regard to the sale of the machine and finally made a trip to Marion to see what had been done by Ansley The latter claimed that he had not been able to sell the auto and Harder decided to take possession of the machine but Ansley stated that he had spent more than $100 in repairs on the auto and wanted the doctor to refund him this amount The chief refused to do and on appeal to Chief Kinchelt the latter recommended that Ansley place on Ohio avenue to make a settlement

The chief informed Ansley that he was in possession of some written complaints about him and that the best thing he could do to avoid trouble was to turn the automobile over to its rightful owner Ansley readily complied with the request of the chief

George Rosette Dies at His Home Northwest of Richwood After a Long Illness of Cancer of the Stomach—Passes Entire Life in Union County—Village Notes.

Richwood, Nov. 1.—[Special.]—Isaac F. Guthery died, Friday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, at his home south of Richwood, in Leesburg township. Had he lived until October 30, he would have been sixty-three years old. He was born in Ohio and lived near Upper Sandusky until ten years ago, when he moved to Union county. He was a member of the M. E. church. The deceased had always followed the occupation of a farmer and lived an honest, industrious life. He is survived by his widow and seven children, as follows: Mrs. S. M. Baker, of Marseilles; Mrs. E. V. Matthews and Mrs. Benjamin Wetterauer, of Marion; W. H. Guthery, of Upper Sandusky; Miss Carrie Guthrey, Miss Gertrude Guthery and Mr. Earl Guthery, who live at home. He is survived by two brothers, John Guthery, of Delaware and James Guthery, of Marion. Funeral services were held from the Pawpaw church, in Marion county, Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, Rev. C. B. Emery, of Marysville, officiating. Interment followed in the Pawpaw cemetery.

George Rosette died, Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at his home northwest of Richwood, after a lingering illness of cancer of the stomach. He had been in ill health for some time, but his condition had not been regarded a dangerous. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rosette, who were pioneer residents of Richwood. The deceased was born here in 1847 and was the eldest of seven children. He is survived by three brothers, who are Charles and Elija F. Rosette, of Richwood, and John Rosette, of Chicago. One of the delightful social events of the season was held, Friday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Gill and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Baker entertained the members of the Imperial club and a number of guests at the Gill residence, on south Franklin street. The affair was a six-o'clock dinner and with the exception of two couples, all the members of the club were present, this being their first meeting of the present season. At the conclusion of the dinner the hours were spent socially and very delightfully. Aside from the club members the guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Wilkins, Miss Mary Peet and Mr. J. F. Woods. The club will be entertained in two weeks by Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Goldebaugh and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Miller.

Judge John M. Broderick has handed down his decision in the case of S. A McNeil, of Richwood, against the heirs of the late Robert Smith, for construction of his will. Carl Smith, of Richwood, represented by Hoopes, Robinson & Hoopes, of Marysville. It has been decided that the clause of the will reading, "My wife shall hold my property in fee simple for the use of her natural life" means that Mrs. Smith was merely to hold the property while she lived. Hence the estate goes to Mary Smith, of Richwood, a sister of the deceased, and to J. W. and F. W. Beem, brothers of the late Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. W. C. Hastings has returned home from a visit in Tennessee. She visited at Chattanooga, Oneita and other cities

Quite a sensation was caused in Magnetic Springs and in the country south of Richwood, Friday, when it became known that Mrs. Belle Armstrong had filed a suit for slander against Mrs. Mayme McClain. Both reside in Magnetic Springs. Mrs. Armstrong claims that Mrs McClain has talked about her in a slanderous manner, accusing her of trying to break up her home and making other remarks She asks for the sum of $3,000. Jewell & Benton, of Delaware, are the plaintiff's attorneys.

QUEEN, EMPRESS AND CZARINA PLAN A REMARKABLE CONFERENCE TO DISCUSS THE PROBLEMS OF EUROPE

London, Oct. 29.—It's up to the women of Europe to decide what's wrong with the present day governments, and if the plan suggested by Queen Mary of England is carried out a remarkable gathering of crowned heads will be held in Windsor castle during December. According to court gossip, Queen Mary has startled the court followers by writing to the empress of Germany, the Czarina of Russia and Victoria of Spain asking them if they would be willing to meet for an informal discussion of "What do the people want?" or "How can the women of Europe bring around better conditions?" It is agreed that this is hardly the wording of the notes written by England's queen, but that is her idea in plain words. The troubles of the Portuguese, the mutterings of Spain and the ever dark cloud over Russia, to say nothing of the unrest in Germany, give good reasons for some action. And England has her insurgents, all of which has caused decided uneasiness on the part of the government leaders. The idea of Queen Mary has been declared impractical and would only result in greater and wider discussion. However, she is quoted as declaring it would be a good idea to let the women discuss topics of the day, and maybe a practical solution could be found. The suffragists of London have jumped at the alleged remarks of the queen as indicating she favors the equal rights of women. This is denied by Queen Mary's friends, as she only wants the various wives of Europe's rulers to help their respective husbands toward a happy solution to present day conditions.

Marion County's Opportunity.

A committee has been appointed to locate two state normal schools in the northern part of Ohio, and that committee is receiving propositions to locate such institutions at Upper Sandusky, Fremont and other North-Ohio towns and cities.

There is a very strong probability that an institution for crippled and deformed children will be established by the state before long. The building of a separate reformatory for girls and women will undoubtedly be strongly urged and considered in the near future, as there is very strong opposition to keeping female prisoners associated with hardened male criminals in the penitentiary.

At the late "International Conference of Charities and Corrections," the need of an institution for the care of inebriates was urged.

There is no doubt that a marked change in conditions at the Ohio penitentiary will have to be made, and many good citizens believe that that institution should be moved outside of the city of Columbus.

Marion has never had any kind of a state institution, although more than a score of Ohio cities both large and small have been thus favored; notably Athens, with both hospital and state college; Pomeroy, hospital; Delaware, Girl's industrial home; Lancaster, Boy's Industrial school; Mansfield, retormatory; Lima, hospital; Sandusky City, soldiers' home; Xenia, orphans' home; Mt. Vernon, tuberculosis hospital, Massilon, hospital; Gallipolis, hospital.

Each of the five large cities of the state has been favored with a state hospital for the insane, while Columbus has been fairly deluged with the penitentiary, hospital for the insane, institution for feeble-minded youths, deaf and dumb asylum, the blind asylum, to say nothing of the great Ohio State university. Places like Wooster have been favored with experimental stations. But Marion, with its central location, superior railway facilities and unexcelled farm lands has absolutely nothing from the state.

The very influence of a governor from Marion county would be very likely to insure the location of some of Ohio's institutions somewhere in Marion county.

As an instance of such influence, it is cited that the Massillon state hospital with its 1,600 inmates, was located in Stark county by the commission appointed to find a location for that hospital, as a compliment to William McKinley while he was governor of Ohio from that county.

MARION COUNTY BOOSTER.

HARMON AND THE FARMER.

Further evidence that the governor believes the farmers can not run their own business is found in the appointment of the members of the board of control of the experiment station. Instead of appointing farmers who have been recognized all over the state as leaders in agricultural matters, as has always been done by Republican governors, he placed two men, one of whom, a Democratic ex-member of the legislature and hotel keeper, it is said, upon his appointment had to inquire where the experiment station was located. The other member of this important board was a real Democratic farmer, but one who was unknown to the people of the state and to farmers generally; and down to this day they are still inquiring, "Who is he, and where did he come from?"

Still another evidence of Governor Harmon's insincerity in reference to agriculture is found in the fact that he has never, during his term of office, visited the Ohio experiment station at Wooster, although it is an institution of the greatest importance to the farmers of the state, and the farm and its equipment are valued at about half a million dollars. The same condition is found in the board of trustees of the Ohio State university. It has been the custom for two farmers to be members of this board When Governor Harmon got a chance he removed one of these farmers, an ex-master of the state grange, and appointed a banker in his place.—Ironton Register.

HARMON'S TWO MASTERS.

Governor Harmon is a man of ability, but can he serve two masters?

Can he do his duty by the people of Ohio as governor and draw over $16,000 during the same period as receiver for J. Pierpont Morgan's C., H. & D railroad?

If that is the record of his first term, what about the second term for which he is now asking the people's votes

Yet Mr. Harmon is a simon pure reformer of the old reactionary school—and a single-minded public servant. It must be true for he says so himself. Moreover, every man who don't agree with him in that view is a grafter or the cousin of a grafter. So there!

Are you going to give Mr. Harmon the opportunity to try to serve two masters for another two years?

That is the big issue in this election.—Youngstown Telegram.

THE ALLIES.

The alliance between Wall street and Tammany Hall stands confessed in Harper's Weekly, one of J. Pierpont Morgan's properties and personal organs.

"Success this year will do the New York Democracy good, especially by encouraging the best Democrats to seek office, and furnishing likely men with experience of public life. Democrats in this state and in all the other states which have long had Republican administrations need the responsibilities of office to develop and advertise their leaders. Without Tammany help the Democrats can not carry the state. Without a turn at administration the party can not develop its best men. To wait for the absolute purification of Tammany before voting Democratic is too much like waiting for translation to a better world before making an effort to make good. Tammany is one of the conditions of Democratic existence in New York. Its party ascendancy is least when the party is strongest. The most effectual purification it ever got came from its own party under Tilden. When it votes for an upright Democrat for a state office, it votes willy-nilly for its own purification."

"Without Tammany help the Democrats can not win." Be sure Boss Murphy has arranged for his reward for the delivery of votes. There will be no other case such as the election of Gaynor, when Murphy's payment was "a few kind words." The idea of self-purification is nonsense and none knows it better than Wall street. For of all the things which the street desires least it is purity in politics. And that applies as well to the friends and allies of Wall street and Tammany Hall in Ohio.—Toledo Blade.

The "FESTIVE" PUMPKIN

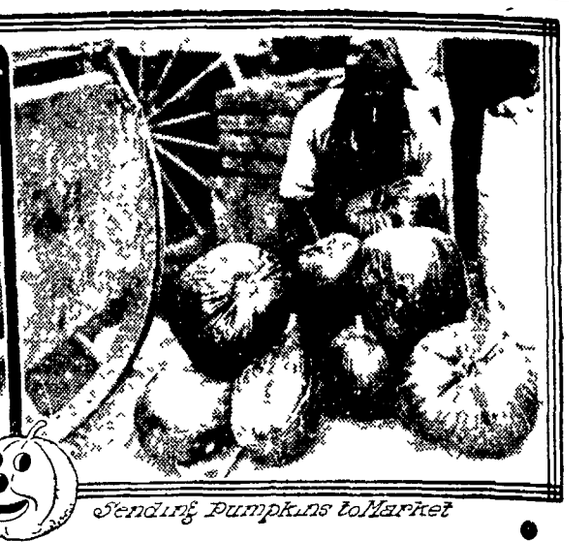
By Waldon Fawcett

Making a Jack o Lantern

Just the Proper Size for a Pumpkin Head

Preparing for Halloween

Getting Ready for "Pumpkin Night"



Sending Pumpkins to Market

NOW many of us who enjoy the mischievous and mirthful Hallowe'en season ever pause to consider what a debt of gratitude we owe the festive pumpkin in this connection? Nature's golden globe so symbolic of all the glories of the autumn is at once the emblem the ammunition and the inspiration of the mysterious holiday at the end of October. Without the grinning jack o lanterns made possible by ye plump pumpkins the October frolic would lose all its zest for juvenile America; while the vivid hued orbs the Hallowe'en hostess would be at a loss for decorative effects at dinner and party and thrift without the wealth of its mellow interior we should be deprived of that supreme delicacy the pumpkin pie than which no greater culinary catastrophe for both young and old could be imagined.

It is doubly difficult to imagine how we would get along with out the legendary pumpkin to just not within the memory of the oldest inhabitant have we been without the heralding of the waning year. We can imagine Christmas without a tree illuminated by the tiny electric lamps or conceive a St. Valentine's Day without those convenient and comical post card valentines because it was not so many seasons ago that we knew not these holiday adjuncts. But Hallowe'en without pumpkins! It is preposterous to give credence even for a moment. It is the pumpkin and its product is that give go to the Hallowe'en festival. In short it is what the mistletoe is to Christmas what the flag is to Memorial Day and what the firecracker is to the Fourth of July. (Beg pardon you safe and saners.)

And yet like many another indispensible in this unresponsive world the pumpkin has had scant credit from mankind. To be sure some homely poet putting into verse the look of things in the afternoon of the year does it now and then about the frost on the pumpkin or something of that sort but what kind of recognition is that for a vegetable the very sight of which is enough to make one's mouth water. It ought to have a monument or at least a memorial by Congress. Congress will whisper it in strictest confidence is the Department of Agriculture which knows all about every sort of fruit and flower and vegetable and digs and gets out big and little books on almost everything has never printed a word in behalf of the pumpkin unless it be a few hints for housewives that want to can pumpkins—as though that were the only fit fate for this boon to mankind.

In fact that there is so much mystery about the history and antecedents of the pumpkin and perhaps this is after all in keeping with Hallowe'en stealth it is known that the pumpkin is a distinctively American delicacy. To be sure some supposed authorities advance the theory that the pumpkin is of Asiatic origin and others are always putting out that pumpkins have been cultivated either as a curiosity or as an article of food in England ever since the year 1770. However we know that all patriotic Americans and true friends of the pumpkin will support the contention that the pumpkin thrived in America long before it was known in any other part of the world and was cultivated by the aborigines of North America who planted it among their maize. And anyway even if we grant for the sake of argument that some other people saw the pumpkin first we can salve our feelings with the knowledge that no other nationality has adopted the vegetable so universally and warmed to it so enthusiastically as have the present day residents of the New World.

And as for taking seriously the suggestion that the pumpkin ought to be granted the significance of a national insignia just as it has so often been suggested that the goldenrod should be proclaimed the national flower it need only be said that this idea is by no means a new one. More than once during the past century persons of some prominence have suggested that the pumpkin be selected as the emblem of New England. In support of the suggestion it is pointed out that nowhere does the pumpkin thrive as in the cornfields of New England and moreover the pumpkin was one of the first fruits utilized by the Pilgrims who landed at Plymouth to ward off starvation during their first terrible winters in the new land. Speaking of New England pumpkins, we must not ignore the charge made by some grouchy persons that the making of the old fashioned New England pumpkin pie is a lost art. Certainly no person who is not suffering from dyspepsia ought to have any complaint to make regarding the pumpkin pies turned out in this day and age and no doubt the reflection upon latter day pumpkin pies originated with men who have idealized the kind that mother used to make."

No one can find fault with the height of the esteem in which the pumpkin is held by Young America. In the estimation of boys it vies with hickory nuts and watermelons, just as the glossy fruit itself rivals or outlasts all other fruit not even excepting the apples in braving the chill autumn winds and even challenging the first snows. As for grown ups if the pumpkin was harder to produce they might prize it more highly. It is pretty much a parallel case with the dandelion. But then perhaps it is not human nature to set much store by an eatable that can be had in such bountiful measure, for say 50 cents, and which is so plentiful in many parts of the country that it is fed to the animals on the farm with never a thought of any better fate.

Just here it may be remarked that we have in America no tillers of the soil who make a specialty of raising pumpkins as they would celery or apples or even melons. There is no "pumpkin king" and no pumpkin belt because pumpkins are raised in pretty much all parts of the country. In France, where the pumpkin is a popular article of food the seeds of the pumpkin are sown in April in a hot bed under glass and after being carefully nurtured are transplanted to the open air during May. Pumpkins in this country get no such care and attention. Every truck gardener has a greater or less quantity of the vines sandwiched in among his other growing things and it is an exceptional farmer who does not plant pumpkins extensively in his corn fields. But mights little heed is paid to the tough leaved vines between the date of their first appearance above ground and harvest time when the farmer seeks the gleams of gold among the withered corn stalks. Yet for all that American agricultural tourists pay so little attention to pumpkins this country could carry off annual prizes both for magnitude of crop and size of individual pumpkins. The champion pumpkin to date was one grown in Colorado a few years ago and which measured five feet across and weighed 180 pound.

Every true friend of the pumpkin must admit that its plebeian name for a royal fruit places it at a disadvantage and yet that is but one of the troubles incident to its nomenclature. As every person who goes in quest of a pumpkin for Hallowe'en plots can well attest there is only one form of pumpkin that is worthy the name and the occasion the shapely orb of joy round as a ball and with its glossy surface tinted a more vivid orange than the orange fruit itself can boast. And yet there are people who confuse the only and original simon pure pumpkin with its numerous cousins none of whom have half its traditions or claims to distinction. Just because the pumpkin belongs to the same general family as the summer and crookneck squashes and the common ink bottle gourds is no reason why anybody should refuse them as no one the same thing. Why even the squash that up to the moment runs to the pumpkin in color lacks its symmetry of form.

The uses of the pumpkin are certainly as varied as of any fruit or vegetable but whatever its misuse it comes into its own during Hallowe'en. For one thing that is the height of the harvest season for the pumpkins and the people who are running the delicatessen stocking the cellars now as are likewise those housewives who are utilizing the delicious fruit is found just beneath the rind of the pumpkin for stuffing for the rest famous of pies the kind. You know that the little boy objected to because they mussed up his ears and falls there is to be taken into account the demand for pumpkins for Hallowe'en its if not it is no slight demand either for it amounts to a consumption of thousands upon thousands of pumpkins every October even with out counting in those which are utilized in making the pies for Thanksgiving feasts.

The precedent Hallowe'en use of the pumpkin is of course for jack o lanterns. You will agree that it would be not merely superfluous but little short of an insult to insert any description of these nocturnal terrors for the timid. Pity the boy who has not in the halcyon days of his youth openly or surreptitiously carved the grinning teeth staring eyes strong nose and explosive ears that vested the placid pumpkin with a sudden ferocity worthy of the most desperate cause. Perhaps it were not well in all cases either to inquire too closely as to just how the pumpkin was acquired. But whatever be the means whereby it was apportioned to its present purpose it is a safe guess that its selection represents much care and thought and time spent in canvassing the possibilities and qualifications of candidates. For be it known the sphere of vegetable gold that is to be toted around with a candle inside to frighten maiden ladies and youngsters in the first or second reader and the hapless passerby must come close to certain rigid standards of form and outline. And then, too it is not advisable to have the pumpkin head too big although that is a temptation but when he is prone to pick a 40-pound pumpkin the farsighted sculptor will recall that a 20-pounder may be much more handy in the event that it is necessary to beat an hasty retreats on the eventful night.

The up to date Hallowe'en hostess depends more upon pumpkins than she does upon the ice cream the popcorn the fudge or any of the other necessities of the frolic at the end of Indian summer. A substitute might be found for any of the eatables but there is no substitute for the pumpkin as a Hallowe'en decoration. Most of the pumpkins that thus go to aid to the jollity of the occasion are the bonafide products of the farm but of late years make believe pumpkins have made their appearance at many an entertainment. It is that they fill a special niche in the scheme of things rather than that they have been required by any shortage of the real pumpkin crop. The situation may be explained by an example. Your ingenious hostess employs the real pumpkins—halved or with an opening at the top or slashed with the outlines of Jack's visage—as shades for the candles that are deemed to give sufficient illumination for such a spooky occasion but she has miniature pumpkins fashioned from colored cardboard as place cards at the supper table and the favors for the guests are candy boxes in the form of pumpkins and filled with pumpkin colored candy.

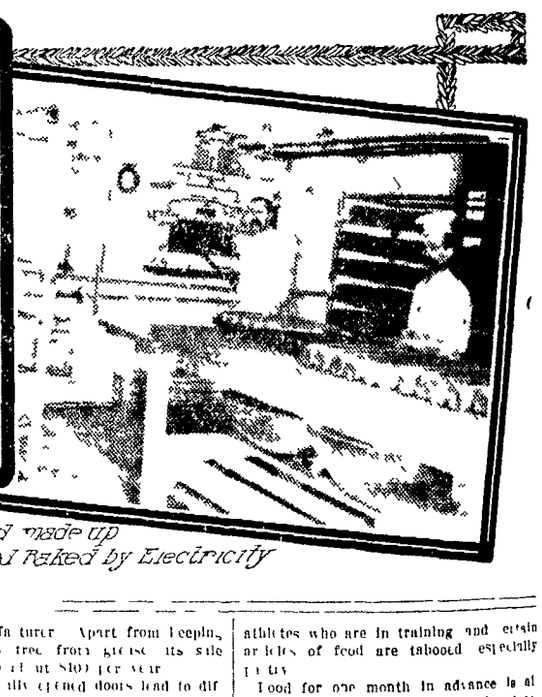
It might be supposed that a jack o lantern is a Jack o lantern and that there is very little difference between the reincarnated pumpkins, but any student of this class of sculpture can assure you that there are wide differences that distinguish the different "schools." The boys whose sole thought is of the impression to be made by the flaming countenance looking out from the pumpkin bestow all their thought upon the facial features that are to be thrown into relief by the candlelight from inside the pumpkin whereas the hostess whose pumpkin sentries are posted in well lighted rooms is wont to embellish a plain countenance with black or white eyebrows and mustaches and other supposedly life like touches.

WEST POINT Run by ELECTRICITY

The Cadets at Mess

The Milk is Sterilized by Electricity

The Potato Peeler



Bread made Cut and Baked by Electricity

The Electric Dishwasher

Ice Cream made by Electricity

THE drill process of preparation of food for a large number of people is always interesting but especially so when it is prepared under military discipline and almost entirely by electricity as is the case at the United States Military Academy at West Point where between four and five hundred future generals are fed each day on plain nourishing food prepared in the most scientific manner.

The kitchen at West Point is always scrupulously clean and is inspected with even more care than the other departments of the academy for the officers in charge know full well that the proper kind of food carefully prepared plays a small part in the mental and physical training of young men. A place for everything and everything in its place is the motto of West Point's chief and those who work under him must follow the same rule or be discharged. Military discipline is everywhere in evidence and there is none of that hustle and scurrying for things at the last minute when meals are to be served so often found at our institutions. Every man has his duties and he must perform them at a certain time without interfering with the work of anyone else. Almost everything is prepared by electricity out man must be present to touch the lever at the proper moment. Meals are served promptly and do not vary five minutes during the entire year. The cadets study by schedule play by schedule and eat by schedule and the chef plays his part when he has the meals on the minute.

The preparation of the food for the mess is one of West Point's most interesting features and has been commented on most favorably by army officers from all parts of the world. Lord Kitchener during his recent visit spoke in the most complimentary terms of the men in charge of the mess after he had made a thorough inspection of the mysteries of the electric kitchen. Several Japanese officials have been likewise interested, as was Prince Tsai Tao, the uncle of the Chinese Emperor, who recently came to this country to study army methods.

All the bread used at West Point is baked by electricity and mixed by the same power. The whole baking from start to finish is completed without the hands of the baker touching it at all except to push the pans into the oven. The great wooden bowl in which the dough is mixed has several funnels leading to it one comes from the flour department another from the yeast and still another contains water. By touching a lever the flour is made to pour out as much of each of the ingredients as is required goes into the mixer. Another lever sets the machine in motion and the dough is mixed. The loaves are then cut by the same power and fall from the cutting machine into the baking pan in regular order. The cutter may be set for any size and is frequently used for rolls a thousand of which are baked each day together with more than one hundred loaves of bread. Once a week fifty fruit cakes are made these too by electricity. All the eggs used in cooking are beaten by electricity and one hundred eggs are scoured right to the regulation lightness without the least labor to the cook who merely presses a button starting the machine and then goes off to attend to something else. The housewife who labors an hour to bring eggs to the proper lightness for sponge cake can more readily appreciate the labor saving qualities of the electric egg beater than anyone else. It is no uncommon thing for a hundred eggs to be beaten in this manner, for egg custard is one of the favorite desserts of the cadets. The electric potato peeler is the greatest labor saving device in the kitchen and is the invention of an Army officer who was regarded as the best financier in the Army and who was at one time in charge of the cadets mess. Through some unfortunate circumstances this officer broke the law and is now serving a term in the military prison at Leavenworth Kan. About five barrels of potatoes are used daily, and the whole amount can be peeled in half an hour. A bushel of potatoes are put into the machine at a time the lever is turned which sets the knives going and inside of five minutes the whole bushel of potatoes perfectly pared without the least waste falls into a tub. The Chinese Prince was so delighted with this useful apparatus that several bushels of potatoes were peeled for his amusement and indeed he is said to have shown more interest and animation in the work of the potato peeler than in any other part of the academy. Several times he called members of his traveling staff to his side and pointed out the extraordinary labor saving qualities of the machine. There is also an electric apparatus for cutting potatoes into various shapes. Nearly two hundred gallons of milk is sterilized every morning by the electric sterilizer, for the surgeons at West Point are determined to be sure that the milk used by the cadets shall be free from bacteria. This apparatus is in the cellar under the [illegible] and is a complicated affair to a [illegible]. The milk is poured into cans [illegible] to 180 degrees. This [illegible] is the bacteria and in less [illegible] minute by a chemical process [illegible] culture of the milk is reduced [illegible] degrees and is ready for the table. [illegible] the usual Sunday dessert is [illegible] by electricity and requires [illegible] minutes to prepare it. The [illegible] manufactured at the academy and [illegible] on the table is chopped by electricity and cut into small blocks. The [illegible] are washed by electricity—a wonderful labor saving device a luxury of every woman who does its own [illegible].

[illegible] one of unclean dishes about [illegible] is refreshing for it is an [illegible] rule that each pan or dish must be washed immediately after use. The dishes are placed in a large wire basket and the electric button is pressed which causes the basket to sink into scalding water where it revolves for a few minutes and the dishes are thoroughly washed. Another lever lifts them to trays where they are turned out to dry. The dishes used at dinner by between 400 and 500 cadets are washed and put away by two persons in this manner in half an hour. Under Sam's economical hous experimental hosts that there shall be no waste. Indeed the average housekeeper would be surprised to learn how economical the chef at West Point is in his work as is shown by the accounts which are turned in to the quartermaster each day. Even the rinsing water from the kitchen sinks is turned into profit for this together with the soap skimmings are purified and used over and over the pavement in the area of the building. When this oil is the cream comes to the surface and is skimmed and sold with the offal of meat, to a soap manufacturer. Apart from keeping the sewers free from grease its sale amounts to at least $100 per year.

Automatically opened doors lead to different parts of the culinary department but the most useful are the doors which lead immediately from the mess hall. Two doors leading to this room have been placed side by side one to be used by waiters as an entrance and another as an exit. There is a platform in front of each door in the dining room for the exit and the other in the service hall for the entrance. When the waiter approaches he steps on the platform which causes the door to open and remain in that position until he has passed into the room and vice versa when he leaves. This saves the loss of dishes and accidental trips when the waiter must push open the doors and lessens the noise as well. This to insure an object of worship to Prince Tsai Tao who contributed it most minutely. A few years ago when it was known Chinese cuisine at West Point he stocked his retinue by riding through these doors again and again and jumping on these platforms like a bull at play. Since the fall in favor of these doors at West Point a like invention has been placed in several state hotels.

All the silver used in the mess hall is polished by electricity and it is remarkable how easily the most elaborately chased pieces are cleaned and how the brush reaches the tiny corners and cleans in a few minutes pieces of silver which would require hours of handwork. The kitchen range is a marvel of cleanliness in fact the whole atmosphere of the kitchen suggests neatness and well ordered labor. Indeed for the chef knows the ages of the cadets and does not expect them in his mess. He is of five successive days and if a cadet complains about the food he is given what he calls for. Cadets who have always lived well and who have always had plenty of food at home must realize that those who are training and exercising require plenty of food of the most nourishing quality. Special dishes are prepared for the athletes who are in training and certain articles of food are tabooed especially pastry.

Food for one month in advance is always kept in the academy and the storeroom resembles a warehouse. Everything is supplied by contract a sample of each article being submitted with a sealed bid. All the meat is selected and handled by a competent butcher and cut to the very best advantage. There is an immense refrigerator where the meats poultry and eggs are stored. The storekeeper too turns in his accounts each day showing just what the chef has received from him.

Electricity plays its part in the laundry for the washing machines and wringers are run by that motive power. It has even found its way into the linen room which is in charge of a sweet faced old lady whose sewing machine is run by electricity. Fifty tables are supplied each day with a fresh clean cloth and napkins and no little care is required to keep them in repair. "A stitch in time saves nine" is this little lady's motto, and she is ever on the alert for a broken thread or a loose stitch. Several young ladies are her assistants and they are kept busy humming and pitching for the bed linen and towels come under her supervision as well.

All the linen used at West Point is especially designed for the Academy and has the coat of arms of the institution woven in the center of each piece.

The cadets dine with the same discipline as characterizes any other part of their work at the Academy and there is no straggling in after the meal begins. The mess hall is well lighted and has plenty of sunshine. The coat of arms is over the door and pictures of noted generals adorn the walls. Dinner is always served in the middle of the day.

Altogether the mess at West Point is a splendid example of electricity as a labor saving power in the preparation of food, and the methods of putting it into effect shows the advantage of military discipline even in a kitchen.

Into such a sartorial saturnalia had this annual event instituted in the interests of true sport degenerated that there was some talk a year ago of discontinuing the Horse Show but with the association reorganized and under new management the 1909 Horse Show proved a brilliant success and this year show bids fair to rival anything of the kind in years Though to the elite for whom it is ostensibly planned the Horse Show is really a gathering of the clans in the interest of amateur sport to the spectators who pay their willing dollars to witness society at play in the big Garden the occasion is frankly a Clothes Show the tanbark events forming only a raison d'etre for the splendor of the boxes The hotels are filled to the doors with out of town visitors with buyers and with dressmakers all eager to witness this most authoritative exhibit of costumes on select living models

And these living models—who sit with nose unmitigated above the staring crowds on the promenade—the last thing they are thinking about apparently is clothes Wellbred serene indifferent are most of the faces—lovely many of them interesting few of them and none of them apparents in the least aware of the torpid gaze of the multitude In their opinion the event is theirs—arranged for such particular benefit and stimulus do they ignore the commercial side of it as garmented as are the lilies of the field they chat gossip and visit from box to box in spite of the annoyance of the gaping crowd below them

Furs Make Their Entry Horse Show Week.

The fur season begins officially with Horse Show time though as a matter of fact furs have been worn since the middle of the summer when the cold raw season at Deauville compelled the wearing of very warm wraps It will surely be a furry week at the Horse Show this season for everything is trimmed with fur or lined with it if not made of it entirely and out some of the stunning wraps made of thin chiffon with band some fur used on the inside the big muffs to match being soft and furry inside while the outside is swathed with folds of chiffon and other diaphanous stuff

Very few fur coats are seen at the show for the atmosphere is too warm in the Garden to permit of the wearing of very heavy wraps Sometimes magnificent fur coats are seen tossed over the chair backs and forming wonderful rich backgrounds for charming costumes and here and there a woman who has just come the possessor of a two or three thousand dollar fur coat will suffer through an afternoon or evening session wrapped in its owner's arms

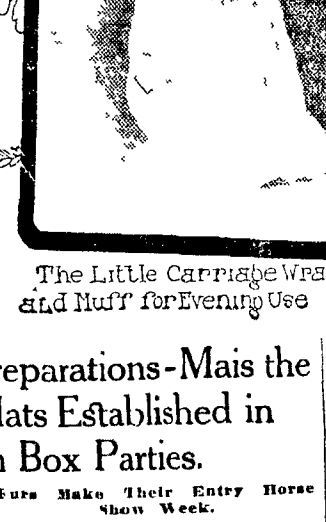
The dressy wrap of fur matched by an evening muff is the feature of fur fashion this year These long shoulder scarfs of the finest pelts and exquisite detail with shirred chiffons and satin recall the pictures and lend distinction and grace to the simplest little frock The little wraps come to the waistline at the back and sometimes reach to the ankles in long tails in front and they are warm enough to sport on any but the very coldest days over pretty frocks of velvet or wool stuff The arms may be buried as far up as the elbow in the huge soft muff which when not in use may be crushed under the arm like a chiffon veil so beautifully soft and light it is

When Miladi Chooses Her Horse Show Costumes

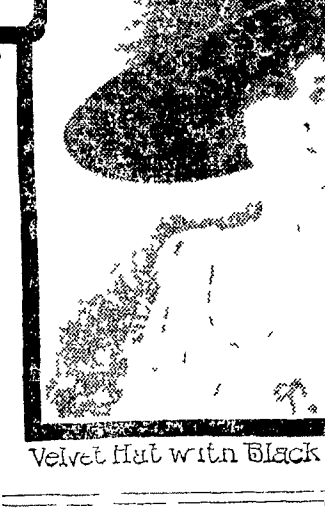
Many of the smart dressmakers are showing these dressy fur sets beside handsome gowns the coloring of the fur being designed to bring out and enhance the distinctive features of the costume Sometimes the fur is lined with satin or chiffon to match the gown the whole toilette gown wrap and hat forming an exquisite harmony of tone

The big dressmakers show semi made models that is bodices and skirts completely basted in the main essentials of trimming and design but not put together at the waist line this detail to be arranged to suit the individual figure When one enters the fitting furnished salon not a vestige is in sight One might be paying a visit in the dressing room of a beautiful acquaintance Models or one of her exquisite personal garbed satellites trying on the models to know which wishes in the line of a costume Is it to be a dinner gown a chic little frock for the matinee or a tailored costume

Velvet Hat with Black and White Aigrettes



The Derby Hat and Hairbow Lend a Look of Extreme Youth



Smart Stocks Are the Accepted Neck Dressing

SMART AND CORRECT TOGS for the GIRL who RIDES

LIKE the immemorial primrose on the river's brim a riding habit to the uninitiated is a riding habit and nothing more But there are infinite variations in riding habits and the costume intended for a morning canter in the mountains is far from conventional rig donned for Horse Show parading as is a print breakfast frock to a formal velvet dinner gown

The costume of the young woman who rides on the exclusive bridle path of the Horse Show in New York in November is rigidly prescribed for her Every detail must express conventionality correctness and elegance No eccentricities or individualities or personal taste are permitted and by the correctness of her dress as well as by the perfection of her horsemanship and the excellence of her mount will she be judged for the coveted blue ribbon

A few young girls ride in the morning in black and white checked habits with black derby hats or sailor hats but at the afternoon sessions only black habits appear and these are accompanied by the ultra conventional silk hat with white stock and gloves and usually a white flower pinned in the lapel of the coat The black habit is exquisitely fitted and tailored and not a wrinkle appears anywhere to mar the faultless lines The coat nips in at the waist and then bells out over the hips flaring toward the knee where it is cut off above the short straight looped up skirt and smart little riding boots of patent leather or calf Habit coats are fitted while the wearer is seated on a wooden dummy horse great attention being given to the length of the garment which must be long enough to cover the narrow skirt gracefully yet so shaped that it will fall in smooth smart lines as the rider sits in her saddle

The young horsewoman drives to the show in her motor or brougham her trim habit covered with a long topcoat manish and smart to the last extreme and not at all like her French motor coat with all manner of eccentric feminine touches in trimming and shaping In truth some of these slender young persons garbed in their smart box coats linen white neckwear and tall silk hats with stocks braided habit are hard to tell from well groomed boys similarly attired

Habits of black and white checked worsted occasionally seen in the morning but the stock are made in very much the same style as the black cloth costumes worn in the afternoon and evening though more latitude is permissible in the way of cut fancy jackets and the like Astride riding is discouraged by the judges who will not permit this form of horsemanship at the more formal afternoon and evening sessions But some of the serious women do ride in this manner in the mornings

Astride riding is indulged in chiefly in the country and is very popular in the Bridle lanes and around Aiken and other winter resorts in the South But in town the side saddle is deemed best taste and one seldom sees any woman—past her teens riding astride in the city parks or avenues

Tan linen riding habits are much liked for country wear in summertime and these habits are also worn at the winter summer resorts in the Carolinas and at Palm Beach A beautiful young girl who takes a daily canter at Lenox this month wears a delicious habit of snow white serge with white buckskin boots and gloves to match and a white beaver tam o'shanter on her dark hair When she dismounts her maid keeps with a big white fox coat of blanket cloth This same maiden partial to white in her habit will be liked to get on very cold mornings in a white corduroy coat with a rabbit fur collar and a jaunty rabbit fur toque drawn far down around face and ears

Riding boots are built of the softest and most supple leather and they are by artists made and sewed by hand for in such a boot the foot and ankle must retain all their natural flexibility for this reason soft calf is better than patent leather and most comfortable of all are the tan calf boots which are worn with informal habits of crash tweed or herded wool material Riding gloves are usually of buckskin and must fit loosely the wrists being left unbuttoned and turned back over the hand Stiff linen collar and cuffs are worn but the neck is partly protected by a high though soft and pliable tie matching the habit material in color or in black and white checks tastily put on with the inevitable pin

It is quite essential that a little putty finish and simplicity characterize the habit worn with the conventional silk hat worn with the horse show habit

HARDING TAKES UP COX ISSUE

Candidate Pledges Square Deal for All.

SCORES HARMON IN CINCINNATI SPEECH

Great Crowd Enthused by His Oratory.

Republican Candidate Declares Governor Harmon Has Proclaimed in Insincerity and Administers in Utter Avoidance of Responsibility. Harding Concludes Big Campaign in Hamilton County.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 2—Coxism and Judson Harmon's record as governor and receiver were the topics of Warren G. Harding's two addresses here last night in concluding his campaign in Hamilton county. Harding spoke first to a crowd that overflowed the Plaza opera-house in Norwood suburb, and then went to the Alms hotel lecture room, where he spoke to an enthusiastic audience.

"I have been challenged to say here in Cincinnati whether I still yield deference and devotion to George B. Cox," said Harding. "Well, I can do more than Governor Harmon dared do The people of the state of Ohio were on the tiptoe of expectancy, yet when Mr. Harmon came to Cincinnati he never mentioned the name of George B. Cox. Up the state Governor Harmon denounces Mr. Cox What I say in any part of the state I say in every part of the state. I have said a good many times, and I am pleased to repeat it here, that I was very glad to have Hamilton county votes in the state convention, though your delegation came for Judge Brown, and I'll be glad to have your support at the polls. But I say to you, as I have said up the state, that I yield deference and devotion to no one in connection with treasury abuses or any other abuses in the public service.

Treasury Abuses.

"We have heard a lot about treasury abuses in favored depositories, but these abuses have not yet been proved. Much of it seems to be campaign talk So far as Mr. Cox is concerned, no has coming from me, if I am elected, a square deal and no more; and a square deal is due every citizen of Ohio at the hands of the governor of the state."

Discussing Governor Harmon's record as a railroad receiver, alleged evader of millions of taxes, giver of rebates and manipulator of legislation to protect tax dodgers, Harding repeated the essentials of the indictment he made in Cleveland Incidentally he read another letter tending to show the payment of rebates by the C., H. & D. while Harmon was receiver in charge of the property.

Mr. Harding said in part

"Three weeks ago the state was stirred by sensational charges of graft and corruption in the management of the Ohio canals. Apparently the charges are not making good, and have largely come of towpath gossip. I stated weeks ago that the increased cost of managing state institutions for six months, ending May 15, 1910, amounted to $65,286 15, more than for the corresponding six months of the year before, and the statement has never been challenged I don't say it is graft, but it looks like gross mismanagement

The Graft Problem.

It is declared that penitentiary accounts are juggled and that many guards are paid out of construction funds to lower the drafts on current expense Day wage employes on the canals are accused of dishonesty for even loafing, while salaried deputies and inspectors, with statehouse jobs haven't seen their tasks for weeks, but are traveling up and down the state proclaiming the marvels of an anti-graft campaign

"Governor Harmon has proclaimed in insincerity and administered in utter avoidance of responsibility He failed to sign a half hundred acts of the general assembly He asks for a legislature to work with him, yet he declined to work with the legislature that enacted for him For a do-nothing record Governor Harmon stands alone among all of Ohio's executives His chief activity, aside from fruitless graft exploitations, has been in vetoing bills enacted by the general assembly He is entitled to the veto record Governor Harmon vetoed the bill giving commercial travelers certain protection in the matter of transportation of excess baggage All the railroads were opposed to this bill and fought desperately to prevent its enactment After both branches had passed it, the railroad lobbyists hurried to Governor Harmon's office What was said there we do not know, but we do know that Governor Harmon killed the bill with a stroke of his pen

Bill Harmon Kills.

"Governor Harmon vetoed the bill requiring street railway companies to provide enclosures on the rear end of cars for conductors We all know that in many cities the rules of the companies require conductors to stand continuously on the rear platform in all kinds of weather, particularly on the new pay-enter type of cars Nearly every street railway company in Ohio protested against the passage of this bill and after it has passed, the street railway lobbyists hurried to Governor Harmon's office When Governor Harmon killed this bill by placing his veto on it he sent a message to the legislature saying that the bill should not have been passed because conductors did not need protection

"Governor Harmon opposed the application of the Nichols law principle in the taxing of all public service corporations The Nichols law provides for the assessment for taxation of the property of public service corporations at its real value in money, which is determined by its selling value as a going concern When the Republican general assembly proposed to extend the application of this method of valuation to railroads and public service corporations, other than express, telegraph and telephone companies, to which it originally applied, a great protest went up.

Lobbyists Busy.

"Governor Harmon caused to be introduced a tax commission bill, which he claims he inspired and helped to draft, and which sought to remove the Nichols law principle from all public service corporations, including even express, telegraph and telephone companies The Republican general assembly put this bill aside and enacted the Langdon tax commission bill, embodying the application of the Nichols law to railroads and to all other public service corporations. The railroad lobbyists fought this provision of the bill desperately, and after they were defeated and the bill had become a law, except for the governor's signature, the lobbyists hurried to Governor Harmon's office.

"Governor Harmon did not veto this bill, but it is just as significant that he refused to sign the bill and allowed it to become a law without his approval. As an evidence of Governor Harmon's knowledge of the operation of railroads, to cite a Columbus despatch in the Cincinnati Enquirer of May 21, 1909, which said:

"'Governor Judson Harmon's intimate knowledge of the operation of railroads was displayed in his veto message of the Shaffer bill relating to the transportation of the baggage of commercial travelers on passenger trains'

Square Deal Subject.

"Well, I'll concede Governor Harmon's intimate knowledge of railroads, but I question his knowledge of what constitutes a square deal, when, in his dual capacity of governor of Ohio and railroad receiver, he is compelled to decide as between corporations and the people.

"I recently charged that Governor Harmon, while serving the people of Ohio as governor and serving J. P. Morgan & Company as receiver of the C., H. & D., had sacrificed a duty to the people to serve the railway master. I said he had omitted securities in tax returns, and cash as well, amounting to $75,000,000, and my charge has yet to be disproved. The delinquency charged during his receivership amounts to an omission of $1,798,110 in taxes, of which Hamilton county's share is more than $100,000 Governor Harmon evades or denies, but fails to disprove. I call on Governor Harmon to deny the existence of the millions of securities I named and to say flatly whether they are taxable Let him answer as governor of this great state Let him say whether a citizen would not be obliged to return those $75,000,000 of securities under the law, and it a citizen should pay, why not a railroad"

Harmon Evasive.

"On cash returned in 1909, I said he officially reported to the court for his railway masters, $157,000 on hand, March 31, and returned only $1,015 to the auditor for taxation Let the governor give his receivership bank balances for April 12, 1909, and if I have misstated the evasion the truth will be apparent It will not do to evade responsibility The courts have read that a receiver shall make such returns The governor must have known At any rate, he ought to have known The point apparent is that Governor Harmon is not fitted to lead Ohio to a solution of the equalization of taxes or serving the people in the regulation of railways He is committed to the railway cause

"A serious task is ahead, the pursuit of the square deal is a big undertaking Governor Harmon missed the square deal by nearly $2,000,000 in taxing the C., H. & D., and the people of Ohio think they can expect a square deal in the problems of righteous regulation and equitable taxation if Governor Harmon is reelected Governor Harmon further declares utterly false the charge that as receiver he allowed rebates under the guise of damage claims I have here a letter, not heretofore published, which speaks plainly on this subject

Produces Letter.

"It appears on the letterhead of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway company, Judson Harmon, receiver, as follows:

"'Mr. S. F. Billingsley, P. C. A.,

Cincinnati, Ohio

"'Dear Sir: I herewith return your claim 284,853, favor of Brown Carriage company, for loss, $75. Claim covers shipment prior to June 5, 1905, and is referred to this department to prevent loss of traffic. I fully agree with Mr. Creamer that this claim ought to be paid. I can not state, however, that the nonpayment of this claim, at the present time, will cause a loss of traffic to our lines, but when the movement of freight by all lines becomes normal, no doubt the payment of this claim would influence traffic via our lines and would therefore recommend its payment at the earliest possible date

"'Yours truly,

"'——— ———.'

OBLIGATED TO THE INTERESTS

Labor's Political League Adverse to Governor Harmon.

Cleveland, Nov. 2—In a communication addressed to the members and friends of organized labor, the executive committee of labor's political league submits a finding of the county, state, legislative and congressional candidates who are to be voted on next Tuesday The feature of the report made Monday night is the adverse finding against Governor Harmon.

The committee states that "the indefensible position taken by the governor during the recent street car strike" justifies a belief that he is "obligated to the great corporated interests."

"His refusal to declare publicly his privately confessed belief in arbitration," continues the report, "is the first instance we know of wherein a high public official has refused to render such great service to a community."

ROBBERS MAKE A GOOD HAUL

Six Thousand Dollars Stolen from Hilliards Bank.

EXPERT BURGLARS BLOW SAFE OPEN

Steal Horse and Buggy and Make Escape.

Condition of Safe Mystifies the Officials at First as to Whether Explosives Are Used, but They Soon Find That Robbers Use an Explosive and Handle It Deftly. No Clew.

Columbus, O., Nov 2—A bank robbery, in which every feature had the elements of dime-novel daring and boldness, was pulled off at Hilliards, last night, when the Merchants & Farmers' bank of that village was broken into, the safe blown open by explosives, $6,000 in coin and currency taken and escape made with the loot by means of a horse and buggy stolen from the barn of Reed Francis, near the bank.

The robbery was executed some time after midnight, and it was not found out until this morning at 6 o'clock, when the night watchman for the village, noticed the rear door partly open. He immediately notified Miss Laura Sammet, the assistant cashier, who rushed to the bank

Quick examination of the safe showed that $6,000 in coin and currency had been taken and the other contents rifled in search for more. The officers of the bank, N. A. Scofield, president, and Leroy Dobbins, cashier, were immediately notified and a notice telephoned to the police of all surrounding cities and villages Careful count of the contents of the safe was then made, when it was found that none of the valuable papers were missing.

A Mystery.

The condition of the safe door mystified the officials at first as to whether explosives had been used or a fine work of drilling into the combination lock and breaking it had been done. They decided, however, after a closer scrutiny, that an explosive had been used, but that the robbers had so expertly handled it that they wrenched open the parts desired and that was all. The iron bars covering the rear door to the building had been pried loose and the door pried open.

The door to the barn of Reed Francis, from which the horse, buggy and harness was taken, was opened in the same way. Here the robbers took time to select the horse, hitch it to the buggy and drive away without being detected No suspicious characters were seen in the village recently

No clue has been suggested as to the identity of the robbers. The bank is a state bank and carried $20,000 burglar insurance. The president announced it would be open for business again by noon.

GUNS DRAWN IN CHICAGO RIOTS

Policeman Stabbed Trying To Repulse Mob.

STRIKERS WRECK CLOTHING FACTORY

The Days of the Haymarket Riots Are Recalled.

Striking Garment Workers Rush West Side Establishment, Drive Strike-Breakers Out and Carry Machines to Sidewalk, Where They Are Destroyed Before Reserves Arrive—Many Rioters Are Hurt.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—The days of the Haymarket riots were recalled for a brief time when Inspector S. K. Healy and a squad of 60 police, with drawn revolvers, charged several thousand striking garment workers who were rioting on the West Side. One policeman was stabbed, 15 rioters were seriously injured and 25 strikers and sympathizers were arrested during the brisk fight, which threatened to get beyond police control.

This, the most serious outbreak that has occurred since the inception of the strike of the garment workers, occurred at the plant of A. Lott & Company. Before the police arrived the strikers had broken all the windows in the large building occupied by the clothing manufacturers, had driven strikebreakers out and carried a large number of sewing machines into the streets, where the machines were destroyed.

Put Up Desperate Fight.

The strikers and their followers put up a desperate fight for a time. Many of their number were knocked down by the clubbed revolvers of the police and not a few were trampled in the fighting which followed. Bleeding heads and faces were numerous and a number of persons suffered more serious injuries.

Promises from well-to-do women to open their homes to destitute striking girls, volunteers for picket service from among women well known as social and club leaders, and pledges of any assistance within their power from many other women were received by Mrs. Raymond Robins, president of the Women's Trade Union league.

Among those to thus volunteer were Mrs. W. E. Hopkins and Mrs. General Simpson.

Mrs. Robins said there are at least 50 volunteer pickets from women's clubs and other sources outside the working girls actively engaged.

"We can not give their names at this time," Mrs. Robins said. "We found it advisable in New York, and I am sure we will here, to keep the police guessing as to who our pickets are."

The police were notified by the victim, but the thieves secured a good start, as their getaway was made several hours previously.

Doped Mother's Coffee.

Circleville, O., Nov. 3.—Alvena Sabine, 16, tried to poison her mother by putting paris green in her coffee The father took the girl into probate court and tried to have her adjudged insane. FOUR MINERS ARE HURLED TO DEATH

Killed by an Explosion Out in Montana.

Butte, Mont., Nov. 2.—Four miners were killed by an explosion in the Leonard mine, an Anaconda property. The dead: John Lillrose, 45; Gus Buckland, 22; Oscar Maki, 30, and Elias Skaun, 37.

The men were engaged in blasting and it is presumed they waited too long before getting out of the way.

Phone Sensitiveness.

Preece has calculated that an audible sound is produced in a telephone by a current of 6 to 10 1-1 ampheres, and Pellat has calculated that a sound is produced by a difference of potential between the two station amounting to only one two-thousandth volt. These statements give some idea of the great sensitiveness of the modern telephone, but the sensitiveness of the human ear; which perceives the invisible vibration of the telephone diaphragm, is no less remarkable.

Cleaning Woodwork.

For natural finish woodwork that has become scratched or dented there is nothing better than a coat or two of shellac.

It is prepared at home by adding the dry yellow flakes to about 95 per cent. alcohol. If shaken occasionally, it will dissolve in a few hours. Shellac is a convenient form of varnish to have in a house, as it readily covers any mark on furniture.

Meeting Success.

The trouble with many of the people who go out to meet success is that they expect it to come considerably more than half way.

RESIGNATION OF FRENCH CABINET

Officials Resign After a Stormy Session.

A NEW CABINET WILL BE FORMED

And Ready for Business by Thursday.

Premier Briand Will Probably Head New Body—Briand's Speech in Chamber Wins Vote of Confidence from the Deputies — President Fallieres Confers with Chamber Presidents Regarding Cabinet.

Paris, Nov. 2.—The entire French cabinet headed by Premier Briand today, tendered its resignation to President Fallieres. The resignation, it is understood, is for the purpose of reorganizing and dropping from the cabinet certain ministers whose views are not in accord with those of Briand.

*It is believed a new cabinet, head*ed by Briand, will be ready for presentation to the chamber of deputies tomorrow.

The resignations of the ministers were tendered after a stormy session of the cabinet.

In forming the new cabinet Aristide Briand will likely remain premier and minister of the interior and public worship, and retain the following: Millerand, minister of public works, posts and telegraphs; M. Pichon, minister of foreign affairs; Dupuy, minister of commerce; General Brun, minister of war; Admiral B. De La Payrere, minister of the navy, and M. Cheron, and M. Dujardin-Beaumetz.

The Climax.

The cause of the resignation is said to be the difference of opinion between the ministers, reaching a climax in the recent railway strike which Briand put down by the free use of the troops and the ordering of the strikers to the colors as reservists and forcing them to fill their own places, under military supervision. It is understood that several of the ministers desired to resign at the time, but all agreed to retain their portfolios until the affair had been ended and the storm in the chamber of deputies weathered.

Briand, by his sensational speech in the Chamber Saturday and Sunday, in which he declared illegal methods of government were execrable to put down illegal acts of citizens, won a vote of confidence from the deputies. As soon as the vote was returned, the ministry prepared its resignation.

President Fallieres, following the usual custom in handling the resignations, conferred at length, this afternoon, with the presidents of the chamber of deputies and the senate but the general opinion is that the new cabinet has already been named and that Briand will be premier.

QUEEN WILHELMINA TO RAISE GOATS IN ALABAMA

Birmingham, Ala., Nov 2—According to Francis L. Robbins, president of the Alabama Portland Cement & Coal company, Queen Wilhelmina, of Holland, is going to raise Angora goats in this state. The queen is interested in the company and has suggested that 14,000 acres be set aside for the raising of goats "Angora goats will be raised on the hillsides of the rough part of our property and hogs and cattle on the other parts not adapted to the raising of corn and tobacco," said President Robbins. "We will pay special attention to the goats, as they are becoming rapidly an article of great value, not only for their pelts, but for their flesh. We have found that thousands of these animals were slaughtered for food in Chicago last year. We will ship our goats to Chicago. In the meantime we will be taking out the coal from under our land and building cement mills at other points."

against graft and exploited it for political purposes He declared for equality of taxation as governor, while at the same time, as receiver for the Morgan railway interests, he evaded just taxes in millions

"I have repeatedly charged that Governor Harmon, as receiver of the C., H. & D. railway, has evaded a tax return to assessing auditors amounting to $75,000,000, on which the taxes owing to the counties through which the C., H. & D. passes, amounts to nearly $1,800,000. The charge is not made because tax evasion is peculiar to the C., H. & D., but because Mr. Harmon was serving as receiver of that company and governor of Ohio at the same time

"The governor has furnished new proof that he can not serve two masters. In this instance, he sacrificed a duty to Ohio to earn his larger compensation from the Wall street interests owning the C., H. & D. property. Governor Harmon, while admitting in his speech at Cleveland, Tuesday night, that he had not been formally discharged as receiver, said that he had not drawn any pay since June, 1909. Does he expect to dray any further pay and will he accept further pay for acting as receiver, subsequent to June, 1909, if offered to him by the Morgan interests? I should like to see Governor Harmon's answer to that question.

Tax Evasion.

"I find no fault with the receivership employment as a private citizen, which is right and honrable, but I do find fault with the glaring tax evasion and noncompliance with the law on the part of an officer of the federal court ,who is at the same time governor of Ohio, advocating the equalization of taxes and assailing petty graft as a great menace of the state.

"This is an era of supremacy of the law. Day laborers on the canals are charged with fraud for loafing while Governor Harmon stands charged with a sin of omission of $1 800,000

"At Cleveland, Tuesday night, Governor Harmon said that I charged evasion only by inference. No, governor, I charged it explicitly. I have named the omitted stocks and bonds in detail, and specified the glaring contradictions of cash.

"The governor says I have never investigated the facts. Wrong again, governor. When this astonishing disregard for the tax laws first came to my notice, I withheld judgment and demanded and personally investigated official documents for the proof.

"One must speak the truth, and only the truth to win Ohio's confidence. From official court documents I named taxable stocks and bonds and Receiver Harmon's reports of cash, and he has never disputed these.

Awaits Answer.

Why doesn't Governor Harmon deny the possession of these stocks and bonds? Why doesn't he say these stocks and bonds are not taxable under the laws of Ohio?

"This is the simple way to dispel the charge. But he doesn't do it. Forgetting that 'guilt is personal,' as he declared when Paul Morton pleaded innocence of evasion of law by placing the blame on subordinates, Governor Harmon also dodges behind subordinates and calls the C., H. & D. tax agent to his defense.

"This subordinate declares the tax returns were made as they had been for over twenty years. What defense is that? No one pretends that the C., H. & D. had held all these taxable stocks and bonds for twenty years. A large part of them had been acquired only a short time prior to the receivership, in the game of financial jugglery by J. P. Morgan & Company, whereby the Erie railroad was to be sold a gold brick.

"But E. H. Harriman then controlled the Erie and knew the gold brick game, and when Harriman balked, the receivership followed, not to liquidate, but to straighten out a tangle in high finance.

"At any rate, twenty years of evasion wouldn't excuse Governor Harmon for its continuation. As Ohio's chief executive he is the first agency of law enforcement in the state.

Harmon's Example.

"Harmon's example in making a lawful return of the C., H. & D. holding would have done more towards equalizing tax burdens in Ohio than any new legislation enacted and would have started a new era of corporate compliance with the law. But the receiver-governor missed the opportunity. He saved the Morgan railway interests $1,800,000, but forfeited the confidence of the taxpayers of Ohio.

"One feature of Governor Harmon's excuse is very important. In alluding to my contention that the Alsdorf law is so adroitly phrased that such evasions are not subject to correction after this year, the governor is quoted as saying: 'Those only are exempted from taxes and penalties for five years back who make full returns in 1911, so the entire period of my receivership is still open.'

"Certainly Governor Harmon didn't mean to say that, because it is absolutely incorrect. The statutory power of county auditors to make tax corrections limits them to 'not exceeding five years next preceding the year in which the inquiries and corrections provided for in this section and the next two succeeding sections are made, and not in any event prior to the year 1911.'

"Clearly any tax evasion prior to 1911 is immune after January 1 next, whether an individual or corporation makes a full tax return in 1911 or not."

IN COMMEMORATION.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for November 6 Is "The Last Supper." Matt. 26:17-30.

Anybody with imagination must be powerfully impressed with the solemnity of the sacrament with which this lesson deals. I have seen great companies of picked men from all parts of the land, bowed in reverent participation. I have knelt on the bare ground of a historic battlefield at sunrise while at an improvised altar the chaplain administered the elements to a few soldiers. On the high seas, while the ship reeled and tossed, holding on to the fixed furniture, I have shared with a company of travelers this ever-mysterious privilege. In great and impressive cathedrals I have found the same spirit in the same sacrament, even as when I partook of it from primitive porcelain vessels, in a cold native chapel in interior China.

What pictures the mention of this supper calls up. Here it is a priest administering the sacrament at the risk of his life to an imprisoned and dying engineer beneath a wrecked railway train; there it is a company of persecuted Scotch covenanters out on the heather. To this day the traveler may see the little rooms in the catacombs at Rome where the early Christians kept the feast. Lonely rural congregations; great cosmopolitan conventions; in every nation and clime, and in practically all branches of the Christian church, this sacrament is kept, even as it has been down the ages, in commemoration of the sacrifice of the world's Redeemer. The unspeakable ministry of this institution to millions of hearts makes any consideration of it reverent and thoughtful.

"Remember Me."

There is a touchingly human side to the institution of the Lord's supper. The net of hatred and envy was swiftly tightening its coils about Jesus. The triumph of His foes was only a few hours distant. The fact of the inevitable cross loomed large before His eyes. As a last preparation, for them and for Himself, the Teacher gathered His disciples about Him for one last heart-to-heart conference. By clever prearrangement He assured the privacy of the gathering against surprise; this time of tender farewell must be uninterrupted.

The hunted and doomed Man yearned, with a heart-hunger such as only the great can know, for the fellowship of his friends. He wanted them to remember Him after His death. That He might be kept vividly before their eyes, in His essential character, He established the Lord's supper, basing it upon the old Jewish memorial feast, the Passover. The two ordinances have the same kind of significance; only the latter represents a human-hearted Savior's yearning to continue to live in the love of His friends. Paul comprehended the meaning and admonition of it when He wrote to his young friend, Timothy, 'remember Jesus Christ."

As yet Christendom has failed to accent properly the significance of the fact that Jesus chose to be remembered in a fraternal feast, and not in a solitary fast. It is while His friends are gathered about a common table that they are to have Him in remembrance, and to talk with one another concerning Him. That the table is the center of family life and of friendly communion is perhaps better understood in the old world than in the new. Perhaps it is because we have been busily engaged for two centuries in opening up a new country, or perhaps it is because of the gloomy strain of our Puritan forebears, but at any rate there is overmuch aceticism associated with our religion The Master who began His ministry at the marriage feast in Cana ended it at the remembrance supper in the upper room

The Forward Look.

"The trouble with Greece," said an enlightened Greek patriot to me the other day, "is that it is too much engrossed with the glories of the past to devote itself to the needs of the present and the future." No nation can live on its past, as certain other powers besides Greece are learning today. Neither can a man succeed by the virtues of his ancestors. This great memorial service which Jesus instituted was marked by all the acute knowledge of life which characterized His every deed, and so it was made to point forward. The Passover which it was meant to supplement or supplant, had looked backward. This celebration kept in mind the new feast, in the kingdom of triumph, where there would be no enemies to harass the celebrants and no traitors to sadden their hearts.

The principle is a sound one for every day conduct. It is the forward look that is invigorating. Life is paralyzed when it stops striving in order to indulge in complacent self-contemplation. Youth's prospects and purposes mean more to the race than maturity's retrospections. The man who ceases to grow because he is so proud of what he has done is a figure as pathetic as he is common. Christianity's best days are always ahead There is essential rightness, and fidelity to type, in the modern missionary impulse. The last supper was a fingerboard pointing forward.

The Master at a Slave's Task.

"A gentleman can do anything," says the proverb. The truly great may condescend to the lowliest actions; it is only the person who is not sure of his station and prowess who is ever at pains to guard his dignity. Such a lot of second-raters, it must be admitted, were these friends whom Jesus was toilsomely making over into first-class men. They were filled with the jealousies of the petty. They forgot their common politeness in zeal for preeminence. The assembly reclined at supper without having had its feet bathed, because each of the disciples felt himself superior to the task.

Then it was that the mild and patient Jesus arose, and having girded Himself with all His supernatural offices, in the full knowledge that He came from God and was going to God. He next girded Himself with the bowl of service, and laved the feet of these squabbling friends. In a wealthier company it would have been a slave's task. Fully aware of the menial nature of the deed, and of all that it involved on His part, Jesus said—and the connection must be remembered by all who would use the quotation, "I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done.

The Skeleton at the Feast.

In the early part of this supper there was a marked constraint upon the Master; for Judas sat by, and Jesus knew that in this disciple's heart seethed the black cauldron of disloyalty and treason. That was worse than the knowledge that somewhere outside the closed door of that sacred room there ranged and howled the fierce wolves of bigotry, envy, fear and pride. The murderous designs of the ecclesiastics did less to sadden the heart of Jesus than the consciousness that one of His friends had proved unworthy. So it was not until Judas had gone about His diabolical business that the Master was free to open His heart to His friends.

The Judas possibility is a startling one. Since a member of the chosen band of twelve could be untrue, no disciple may count on his own loyalty, except as in humility he puts first the Master. Judas let other things get in between himself and his Lord—hurt pride, self-interest, thoughts of his own future apart from the future of the cause of the Messiah, and then, supremely, a spirit of thrift which developed into a passion for money. The heart that loves gold, becomes not golden, but iron. Judas' name is forever associated with the last Supper as a solemn warning to all other friends and followers of the Teacher.
